

SEASON 1. A STORY
OF AN ETERNAL
SEPARATED COUPLE

I'M ASURA'S WIFE

This is the first season of my video novel «I'm asura's wife» based somewhat on true events and is a remake of a story I once narrated called «My Roman. I'm asura's wife».

This story was formed in the course of my description of some strange invisible hacker connection of some man to me at a distance on some energy plane of existence.

When I presented this strange invisible connection through distance in my videos, the story of a separated eternal couple presented itself, revealing how in distant past lives a certain eternal couple was separated due to a curse in which the husband became an asur and the wife became a destroyer of asuras.

Here I present this self-revelatory story of the separated eternal couple already from the height of time.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple
I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

§1. Comprehending the past from the height of a new time. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/5k16N08qmmM>

<https://youtu.be/tiESEEuG834>

Dear friends, ladies, gentlemen.

With this episode, I start a large cycle of videos, which are a remake of a story that I have already told, called "My story. I'm asura's wife".

This is the release of new versions of an already crystallized story that has developed in the course of my description of some strange interaction

I have with some man, whom I do not know. I don't even know if this man exists or not. But I described some strange interaction with a man at a distance.

Why is this interaction strange? Because it was like connecting one person to another person through a distance.

Of course, you can say that we connect to each other and communicate in the Internet through a distance too. But this is not what happens when communicating in the Internet.

There I described the invisible connection of one person at some invisible, energy plane of existence, and without the awareness and conscious consent to this of the one to whom this connection goes at a distance.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

This can be similar to remote computer control, for example, using the TeamViewer. But there you yourself give access to the one who controls your computer remotely, and you can see what he does there. You can see the cursor movement on the monitor and the changes in the computer.

But there was something else. It was like a hacker intervention, when hacker gets access to your computer and can do whatever he wants there. And you won't even know about it, since everything happens remotely, covertly, not advertised. Without increased attention to small details and changes, this foreign interference cannot be recognized in any way.

I described such an invisible connection of some man to me at a distance in my novel "My story. I'm asura's wife", which has 337 videos. In that cycle, the history of a separated eternal couple manifested by itself.

This is a completely transcendent story. This is the story of an eternal couple. This story was revealed step by step according to indirect signs, clues coming from everywhere, including from videos in which I described that invisible connection of some man to me at a distance.

There it was discovered that in distant past lives a certain eternal couple was separated due to a curse, as a result of which the husband became an asura, and the wife became the destroyer of the asuras.

Both the connection of a man to me at a distance, and this self-manifested story of an eternal separated couple are so transcendent that I decided to retell all this again in the remake novel I started right now, "I'm asura's wife".

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

In it, I want to tell how I nevertheless recognized that invisible and imperceptible access to my, what discoveries followed this and how the story of a separated eternal couple was revealed to me.

Here is a brief summary of what will be discussed in all the other videos of this remake novel "I'm asura's wife".

In the next episode, I will present this incredible story of a separated eternal couple. Then I will start my story about the getting of some man the invisible access to me, how I was able to recognize this invisible and completely imperceptible access to me, and what followed from this.

It was revealed there about this man, whom I have never seen, whom I do not know and who, perhaps, does not exist at all. There was revealed that this man is an asura, that is, a certain creature who came as part of the asura landing here to us, to Earth, from some far beyond asuric worlds, not from our planet Earth at all.

And there it was shown that these asuras from some distant asuric unearthly extra-planetary worlds are born here and live, like us, among us, but they are the masters of humanity.

Here they are fighting with some reptilians who live among us in the same way, sort of like us, and who also want to become our masters.

And in novel "My story. I'm asura's wife", it was shown that this man, who getting invisible access to me and whom I don't know, maybe he doesn't exist at all, he is an asura from that landing of asuras from some distant asuric worlds.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

These asuras live among us and are the same as us. They walk among us, but in fact they have some incredible mystical asuric abilities. They can get invisible access to people. They can see from the eyes of these people, can hear all their thoughts, and can hear what these people hear. They can influence the desires of these people. They can even control these people, the way hackers can remotely control your computer, completely invisibly.

These asuras, as it was revealed to me, have completely transcendent mystical abilities, one of which is the ability to get invisible access to a person at a distance and somehow control him remotely.

In this remake novel “I'm asura's wife,” I will talk about this in detail. I will talk what realizations I have about all these asuras and reptilians and what they can do and what they do to us, to people.

§2. Curse from past lives. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/Z6Mi6pnZqVg>

<https://youtu.be/jHmevR5Jl3>

In the second episode of my novel-remake «I'm asura's wife» I will talk about why the eternal couple was separated into many incarnations in the material world.

It was a curse. And I'm going to tell in this episode who put the curse to this eternal couple's, why this couple was cursed, what was that curse and how it affected the couple.

So, in this remake-novel «I'm asura's wife» I am an eternal wife. And I have an eternal husband. And we are an eternal couple. He and I were a couple

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple back in the spiritual world, where I was one of the millions of prosperity goddesses, who, together with their husbands, lovingly serve God on the planets of Vaikuntha, the planets of the spiritual world. And from there we fell with him into the material world.

Having fallen into the material world, we've been together a lot of lives here, an inseparable couple. But in one of our lives, we did something very, very wrong against some wise man.

As a result of our actions his wife left him, and he was left alone to live out his life, with no wife and no children, as they had not yet had children.

He had to be alone. And at one point, when he was so desperate for his loneliness and despair, he cursed me and my eternal husband.

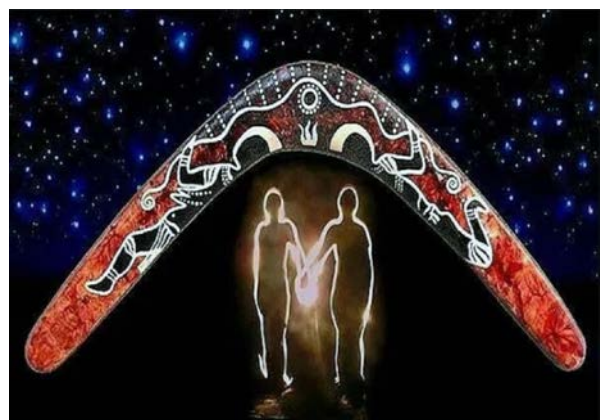

This wise man cursed me to be alone, without my husband, because his wife, as a result of our actions was alone, without her husband.

And he cursed my eternal husband so that he would never have children, because because of us, this wise man had no children in that life.

He also cursed my husband to live his life alone, because we left that sage all alone and he lived his life alone.

He gave us back what we had brought upon him. And it was just

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple retribution, adequate response. But this curse didn't come to us in the life, that this wise man cursed us, but in the next life, when my husband and I were born again, became a couple again, together.

In our new life everything was fine. We were together and happy. But the curse had already begun to work.

An asura liked me. He was so attracted to me, that he decided to get me at all costs. First, he started manipulating my mind. He began to affect me invisible, at a distance, without personal communication, as the asuras know how to do it, throwing into the mind the thoughts that the Asuras need.

Since my husband was cursed, that he would not have children, we could not have children. We were childless. And the Asur took advantage of my husband's absence of children, burning in me more and more desire to have children. I looked at couples with kids and was jealous of them.

Asur also manipulated my husband's mind. He was throwing thoughts of children into his mind, too, but just that it's probably because, that we have no children,

that I am, that I'm infertile. Asur was putting ideas into my husband's mind that maybe he could have children with another woman and that I should be abandoned.

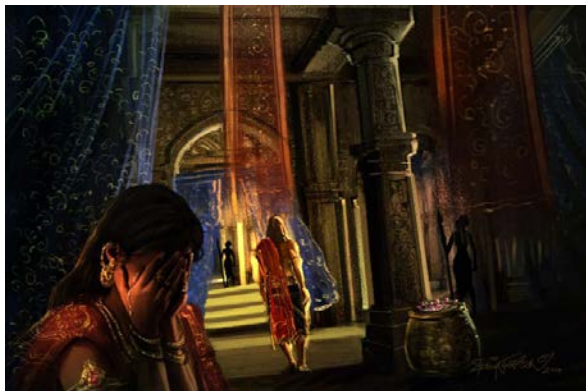

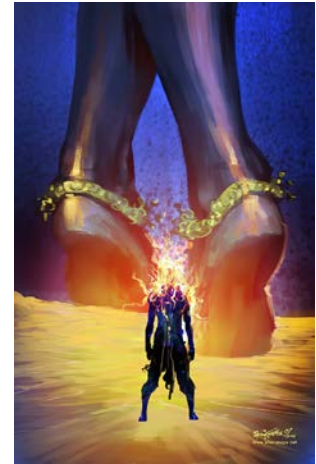

But all of his efforts failed because we were still together, even though we never had children. And then this asur turned on the heavy artillery. He involved some asuri-woman, who specialized in seducing men.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

She used all her charms to seduce my husband. And she stole my husband's mind from me. He gave up on me, thinking that I was the reason that he had no heir, and that he would definitely have babies with this beautiful woman, because she's a real woman, not like me.

And he left me, blaming me for everything. He left me. Although we were together in that life. And though we have for many lives before this were together, an inseparable couple. And though we were an eternal couple and this connection could not be interrupted. And though we fell with him from the spiritual world into the material world.

He walked out on me, saying, it was all my fault because I can't have children. So the curse came true, and we got what we deserved. And this eternal couple was separated into many, many lives, unable to be reunited, since I was cursed, I said I'd be without my husband. I couldn't be with my husband. So when the curse hit us, we were separated by a huge, innumerable number of lives.

§3. Witch Hunt. I'm asura's wife

https://youtu.be/vFV_u9uzfS4

<https://youtu.be/pvZrvt38oHM>

So the curse worked. My husband left me for another woman, an asuri-woman. But it wasn't really enough because the curse said I should be alone without my husband. And in order to close the door completely to our reunion, not only in the life it took place, but in the next, in all other lives, future lives, that fate so ordered that that asuri woman began to offer my husband an asuric initiation and adopt an asuric nature. She said it would make him irresistible in sex and give him some incredible mystical powers. And to satisfy her desire, he adopted an asuric nature.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

So the curse worked 100 percent, because it completely closed the way for me and him to be reunited, not just in the life that it all happened, but in all the other, future lives.

So, when my husband left me and even more so, embraced the asuric nature and became an Asur, the asur who was attracted to me and who wanted to get me, and for that he made this whole combination, he appeared on my horizon. He asked me to marry him, said he loved me very much.

He said he would give me the whole world. He said that maybe I could have kids with him, and if I don't, that's fine. The main thing is love. But I could not imagine in the position of my eternal husband any other man. And I refused this asura. Especially since my husband and I were married in that life. And more than that, he and I were an eternal couple, and even before we fell into the material world, when we were still in the spiritual world, we were already an eternal couple, and this connection is unbreakable.

And I refused the asura. It really pissed him off. He decided to open up an invisible hunt on me and make the people around me think I'm a witch and think I'm bringing them bad luck, causing them bad luck and all. Somehow this asur started to make the animals that I had somehow come into contact with suddenly began to lash out and attack people. I don't know how he did it, or in some invisible, mystical way, or just in some way, even physically, to the animals, but the animals next to me came into some very violent rage and threw themselves at people. And people had some misfortunes, too, and this asur started spreading rumors that all this is happening thanks to me.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

People began to think I was a witch. I had to become a recluse to have less contact with people in general. I shut people out to protect myself. But the Asur did not stop, and his efforts led to the fact that the people around me started hunting me, a witch hunt. I survived a witch hunt in that life, and I was a witch, even though I wasn't really a witch. I was a human being. But I happen to be a victim because I've been hunted, it was witch hunt.

Because of that, I had to leave my home, my cozy, warm home. I left this house and moved somewhere else, but from there I had to move. I had to change several places of residence. And all the time this witch hunt caught me. After that I had to flee to some forest wilderness. But there I was being chased by some mob with sharp stakes who wanted to kill that evil witch.

I found myself in some dense thickets and hid there from people's hatred and anger. And then this asur again appeared on my horizon.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

He asked me to marry him again. He said he would protect me from these ignorant and stupid people. He said he'd hide me in some palace of his, and I'd be completely protected, rich, I'd have everything.

But I refused this asura and went wandering again, hiding from everyone in some forest wilderness. It pissed the Asura off so much he hired some thugs. He told these thugs that they could do anything to me, to I would crawl back to him on my knees and be ready to become his resigned concubine and slave and obey all his orders and whims.

These thugs are already hunting me down. They were professionals in their field. They're rounding me up like a bear hunt. But somehow I was lucky. Where I was being rounded up by these professional thugs, some noble nobleman drove past me. And he saved me from the hands of these thugs.

He took me to my father-in-law's house, somewhere far from here. And there I spent the rest of my life in peace and seclusion, forgotten by all but safe. My husband, too, lived out his days alone and in seclusion, because that asuri-woman left him and he had to live his life alone, just like the curse that was imposed on us. So ended the life in which this eternal couple was separated.

And so the curse was realized, that I would be alone, without my husband, that he would not have children (children were not born so), that he would live out

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple his life alone. And so the eternal couple was separated.

§4. The paradoxical effect of the curse. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/eKj5kToYUQ8>

<https://youtu.be/fJec8HBW2Os>

So, the life in which my eternal husband and I were separated by a curse is over. The curse said that I should be alone, without my husband, and that my husband should have no children of his own and that he should live his life alone. My husband and I left my body, we died. Life ended.

When I got between lives, I started looking for my husband. I was calling out to all sides of the universe, like a locator, sending signals into space. I called him: «Call out! Come!» I and he are an eternal couple and always were inseparable, always he responded. But there was no response.

He began to be born in asuric worlds. He already had an asuric nature. We were in different planes and could not touch each other.

There, in between lives, I was completely devastated by the thrill of being alone and abandoned.

And then some powerful people came to me. Between lives, they explained to me that my eternal husband and I would never be together. They showed me how he turned out.

I was very shocked by what he had become and what he was doing in the asuric worlds. That was totally unacceptable to me. I had a total rejection of the picture I saw.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

Those powerful personalities who have come to me between lives have offered to release me from the eternal bond that my husband and I are bound together forever. They said they could break our unbreakable bond. They offered me a new eternal husband to choose from.

I was ready to accept their offer. I was even considering the options offered to me, the descriptions of the candidates for my eternal husband.

But the sage's curse, which said I'd be alone without my husband, affected me in a completely paradoxical, unbelievable way. And I turned down those powerful personalities. I told them that I accept my destiny, that I obey the dictates of the times, and that I will not interfere with the course of events. I said I wouldn't trade my husband for any other man and that I wouldn't agree to sever our eternal bond. I refused them. Even though my eternal husband became an Asur. Even though he and I will never be together and I will always be alone, without my husband.

It was in such an incredible way that the curse actually affected me, because I was about to accept it, but the curse affected me in such a way that I refused the offer because I was cursed not to be with my husband. And it was only with my decision that the curse could be best realized. Because I kept having a husband. We continued to be an eternal couple. Our relationship with him was not torn. But at the same time, he wasn't with me and he couldn't be because he became an Asur.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

I doubted very much and was ready to give up my husband. I was ready to accept some other eternal husband. I was already considering candidates. But I turned down that fancy offer.

It turned out to be a very pious act. Because it was explained to me that I am an eternal wife and that for me to be alone is a completely unnatural position, the most uncomfortable position and that I still better be a wife, be with my husband, because it is my natural eternal position, since I am the eternal wife in the spiritual world, this is my svarupa, which is my original eternal position. Under the curse, I refused the offer of a new husband. I was thus incredibly faithful.

And through this great act of godliness I have been granted an ascension to the higher planets of paradise, where the demigods, that is, beings of higher order, deserve to live on the higher worlds and experience the heavenly pleasures there through their pious acts.

§5. «Become my husband!» I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/DfDFs44TmiM>

<https://youtu.be/Elat91R08h0>

I have refused the mighty personalities who have come to me between lives and have said that they can break our eternal bond with my eternal husband.

I refused them because of the effect of the curse on me. The

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple curse said I should be without my husband. And so I did a great act of piety. I have shown incredible fidelity because I have consciously accepted my eternal loneliness, although I continued to be an eternal wife and became forever separated from my eternal husband. The curse worked in such a way that under his influence I did a great act of piety.

Because of this pious act, I deserved to be ascended to the higher planets of paradise. I've come to the abode of the demigods, beings of the highest order. Because of the curse, I went to heaven, to the highest planets of paradise!

On the higher heavenly planets, souls who have accumulated a much pious merits for good deeds are resting and enjoying. It's like we save up for a holiday, go to a resort, relax there, soak in the sun on a warm beach and do nothing.

I, too, could enjoy, being on the planets of paradise. But no. I didn't forget about my eternal husband there, and I started pestering everyone there, trying to find a way to get past the curse, how to break the curse, how to get my husband back from the Asuras to normal living beings, and how to reunite with him.

I pestered everyone on the higher planets of paradise, begging them to help me get my husband out of the Asuras and to lift the curse from us. But no one could help me.

I spoiled the spirits of the inhabitants of the paradise planets, as I did not plunge into their paradise

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple pleasures. I prevented them from enjoying there. I prevented them from vacationing there at the resort and pestered them there with pleas for questions about some curse some kind of asura from some Asuric world.

I was spoiling everyone's mood. I said, «What are these heavenly planets where no one can help me?» I said, «Everyone though enjoy. Everyone wants to go to heaven. But here I am, on the higher paradise planets, and no one can help me».

And then they told me that the best way for me is to go back to the spiritual world and to leave my eternal husband in the material world. I was shown how exactly I could escape from the wheel of the samsara, from the material world to the spiritual world, to the planets of Vaykuntha, from where I fell into the material world.

I was told, «This is the door to the spiritual world. You have no reason to stay in the material world anymore. You came here from the spiritual world with your eternal husband. But he became an Asur. You're cursed to be alone without your husband. And you're an eternal wife. You didn't want another husband. You were offered another husband. What do you want from us now?» — told me there, on the higher paradise planets.

from us now?» — told me there, on the higher paradise planets.

They said to me, «Return to the spiritual world. The door's open for you. Go to the spiritual world. Stop being in the material world. Go from the material world to the planets of Vaykuntha and be there again one of the millions of goddesses of prosperity that you were before you fell here into the material world. Go there. The spiritual world is waiting for you.

Don't worry about your eternal husband. Without you in the material world he's going to be really sick. The material world will quickly cure him of wanting to enjoy this world. And he will soon return to you there into the spiritual world. It would be better for both of you if you were to return to the spiritual world right now from here, from the higher planets of paradise, through this door, which is shown to you and which is opened before you, because he will also quickly jump out of the material world like a cork from a bottle».

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

So I was told on the higher planets of paradise, when I was pestering everyone, asking them to rescue my husband from the Asuras and reunite us with him by lifting the curse.

But I didn't want to leave my eternal husband alone in the material world. I gave up on a real chance, from a real opportunity to return to the spiritual world. I refused to use the door that was open to me when I was there on the higher planets of paradise.

I realized that no one there would help me on the higher planets of paradise and that I would not wait for anyone to help me. And I started praying to God. I began dancing the dances of devotion to the Deity of Nrisimhadev. I began dancing for the Deity of the Lord in His wonderful incarnation as Narasimha, who, in his fierce form, kills the most vicious villains.

I began dancing the dances of devotion to this Deity out there on the higher planets of paradise, begging Him to help me, because no one else can help me and I have no one else to rely on.

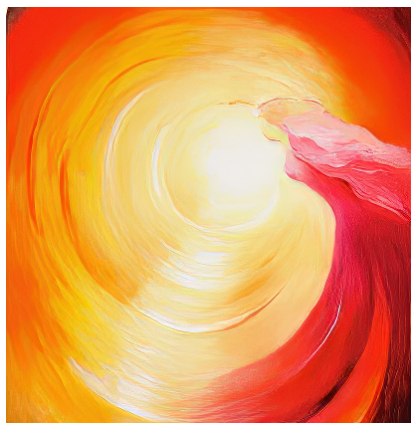

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

After some time of these dances of devotion to the Deity of Nrisimhadev I began to develop tender feelings towards him. I began to fly to Him mentally during the dances of devotion. I began to mentally embrace Him and even dissolve in this Deity.

So I flew and dissolved in this Deity for a very long time. And during one of the dances, a call to the Deity of Nrisimhadev broke out of me: «Become my husband!»

And he accepted this. I somehow became the wife of Nrisimhadev in the form of His Deity on the higher planets of paradise. In this incredible way I found my second eternal husband. He is the Lord in the form of Nrisimhadev: half lion and half man who defends his devotees and destroys sinners. Nrisimhadev, in the form of Deity on the higher planets of paradise, accepted me as his wife.

After that there were many more dances of devotion to this Deity when I flew to Him, and embraced him, and was dissolved in him. And in one of these dances, I disappeared into Him and never returned to my body. I remained dissolved within the Deity of Nrisimhadev on the higher planets of paradise.

§6. Effective call from asuric worlds. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/CJq-so62Zxg>

<https://youtu.be/8s8gpOBJFYg>

I remained dissolved in the Deity of Nrisimhadev on the higher planets of paradise. I have been

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple in a very long, innumerable amount of time in such a dissolved state in the Deity of Nrisimhadev.

All this time my eternal husband was constantly incarnated as an asura in the asuric worlds. He was unlucky with women because he left his real, eternal wife for an Asuri woman, which put his real, eternal wife in a very vulnerable position. She was slandered and considered a witch who casts curses. Witch hunts were opened on her. She had to flee the house and hide in some dark, dense woods. After that she was raided by a gang of thugs. And my eternal husband could not be happy with any woman, being the cause of unhappiness for his eternal, real wife. And every connection he had with every woman always ended in some terrible tragedy. He could not have children because of the curse. He could not give heirs to any family, and therefore he had an unenviable position among the Asuras.

He was always feeling something empty in his heart. He felt he had his own real, eternal wife somewhere. He began to call me to his asuric worlds so that I could come to the asuric worlds and live there somewhere near him.

And it was his call that led to Nrisimhadev's subsequent decision. I was dissolved state inside the Deity of Nrisimhadev for a very long time on the higher planets of paradise. And after that, Nrisimhadev told me that it was time for me to come out of this Deity and begin to incarnate again. And it was precisely because my eternal husband called me to him, and because this call could not be ignored by me.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

Because I have been within the Deity of Nrisimhadev for an incalculable time on the higher paradise planets, I have been given the nature of Nrisimhadev. Thanks to the fact that I became Nrisimhadev's wife, I received His supreme protection. And thanks to this I became a very powerful, formidable weapon. Around me formed a team of powerful specialists, whose unique abilities worked to fulfill my desire to revenge the Asuras. We became a team of the elusive avengers. We have conducted many brilliant operations to destroy the great asuras in the asuric worlds.

§7. Mystical flaming sword inside the body. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/FoxTMbSuD5A>

<https://youtu.be/oTJhLzIAYFc>

I began to incarnate in asuric worlds, where my eternal husband incarnated. 40 times have I incarnated in asuric worlds to answer the call of my eternal husband and destroy every time the most powerful asura of all that no one could destroy. 40 times have I incarnated in asuric worlds at the call of my eternal husband.

Every time I was incarnated, I became the wife of the most powerful and outstanding asura that no one had access to. I somehow caught his eye. He noticed me, was attracted to me. I had looks, character, and a set of qualities that he really liked. And he couldn't help but fall for me, because everything was thought through before I was born in that physical body of mine. I was such an irresistible dart whose blow could not be repelled. It was one hundred percent hit the target.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

Everything in me was so that this asur was mine. He himself brought me near and fell in love with me, I too. I loved him really, sincerely, wholeheartedly, with all my heart. He couldn't live without me. He and I were becoming a wonderful, perfect couple. We had a happy married life together.

But as time went on, he began to think of desires that were somehow fueled by some supposedly random events that were taking place according to the plan that I had created with my team of some unique specialists before I was born. And these seemingly random events encouraged him to start having orgies with me in the lead.

This asur was very powerful, the most important asur at the time when I was incarnating. And his favorite game was orgies with young women. But in one way or another with the help of some seemingly random events in him grew a desire to have these orgies happen to me in the main role. And after a while he broke under the weight of this desire. And these orgies did happen.

But since I was pure and faithful by nature, and I never would have done it myself, he did something wrong to me. As a result of his actions I was not aware of reality and I was as under the influence of some enchantments, or hypnosis, or some substances, fogging the consciousness, but liberating bodily. And he gave me to his friends.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

This asur husband of mine still loved me, but even before I came into his life, he already liked to indulge in such orgies and did not think it was anything wrong. And all the more so that the situation developed in such a way as to warm up in him this desire and that he could not resist this suddenly popping out of nowhere long-standing addiction. And he and his buddies were satisfying their perverse desires with me, at a time when I wasn't aware of the reality, completely open physically and sure that only my beloved husband was with me.

And it wasn't a single orgy. It was quite a long series of such orgies, in which I was the main object of pleasure for my husband and his buddies. When the orgy was over, I would come to my senses, and I would see evidence, like clues, that made me think that something was wrong with me. I also had some visions, as dreams, where I saw myself in those orgies as if from the outside, like someone were showing me everything that was going on outside. They were terrible dreams and terrible visions. I didn't tell this anyone about this because I was ashamed that I might have such thoughts. And the evidence made me think that what I saw in those visions, in those dreams, was with me. And I also felt something wrong with my body. But my husband told me that all this just seems to me and is not worth my attention.

At some point, the veil of my eyes was being removed. This sleeper agent was waking up from his sleep and taking up his duties. It was always during intimate intimacy. I and my asur husband, who I was supposed to destroy, were intimate.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

I was on top. And as I sat on him and I made my body moves, I suddenly began to see fragments of my visions of these orgies. And each one of those visions was matched to some evidence that I had already seen in real life that somehow confused me. These pieces of my visions, like pieces of a puzzle, connected to this evidence, to a hunch. All these pieces of the puzzle of evidence and visions formed a perfectly clear picture, and I realized very clearly that my loyalty, my love, my trust, my tenderness were being defiled by this man who lay beneath me and whom I considered my husband, whom I've trusted myself all my life, who I loved with all my soul.

I could clearly see how he was actually selling me to his buddies and how they were all together humiliating me as a woman when I wasn't aware of myself and I couldn't control myself. And then I turned on the function of destroying the asuras. It happened by itself. From my body, from the bottom, on some energetic plane of being, a radiant powerful column of light, like a laser sword, a laser beam, began to emerge. With every move I made, that fire ray moved further and further into my husband's energy body. This fire sword gradually destroyed and burned all chakras of asura, all his asuric nature, all that he had.

With every move I made, the fire sword drew closer and closer to the Sahasrara chakra of my asura husband. And when the fiery sword reached the Sahasrara chakra and pierced the energy body of this asura through, filling his whole body with its radiance, all was already burned. His entire asuric nature was completely burned. There was a black hollow empty energy channel.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

That asur husband of mine fell into bliss of incredible intensity and depth. He felt such all-encompassing love that all the fuses in his body were blowing, as the body could not stand such unimaginable bliss. And he could no longer to be in his body and he left it in unimaginable pleasure. Everything asuric was completely destroyed, completely and irrevocably. I saw this shining mystical sword that came out of my body on some energy invisible plane of being and moved in the body of my asura husband. I saw it on some inner screen by some incomprehensible vision. This shining mystical sword disappeared, and the task of that my life was fully fulfilled: another of the strongest, most inaccessible asuras was killed.

Immediately I came to my senses and, looking at the lifeless body of my beloved husband, in utter despair, I began to pray to God, saying that I could not live without this man. There was an invisible mystical fire growing inside me. This mystical flame began to rage from below upwards also on some invisible mystical plane of being. And all that fire raging filled my body, and I, too, left my body.

When I came out of my body, I fell into the arms of my team, with which we planned the destruction of this strongest unattainable asura. I realized who I really was, and I saw that we did this work without a hitch because I got out of a dangerous situation in time. I avoided the cruelty that would have been done to me by the asuras after the death of their leader.

Thus I have been incarnated 40 times on the asuric worlds at the call of my eternal husband. And so each time I killed another of the strongest and most inaccessible asuras. I'll tell you in the next episode why I followed the same scenario and why I had handwriting of my actions that could tell that the same person did it. I'll tell that followed after that and what it was for.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

§8. The curse that untied my hands. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/Wjy4vw29TCM>

https://youtu.be/X8m_5hERkGg

All these 40 times, each time, I followed the same scenario with some minor external differences, but still following the same line with a clearly traceable handwriting.

But wouldn't it be logical and right for me to act without the Asuras knowing it was done by me? Was I so stupid with some powerful team of unique specialists that we acted so uniformly, so straightforward, on the same pattern? How could such a unique team miss the moment of recognition of these actions and show the enemies the link between these 40 actions of destroy the most dangerous asuras?

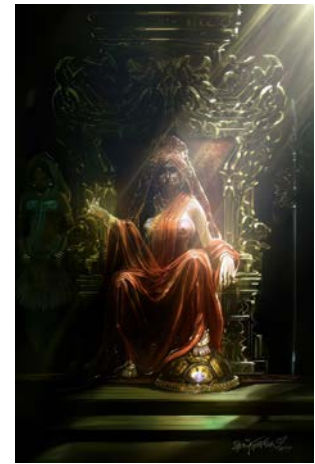

In fact, there was a very great utility for us in this. And I will now present the first expediency of the obvious two. So, first of all, it was necessary for me and my team, because we tried to piss off the Asuras, destroying the most formidable asuras in the same way. We wanted one of the Asuras to break down and make his reckless move.

And our strategy worked. After we destroyed the 40th asura, some of the asuras couldn't stand it. The Asuras already knew that the same woman incarnates in the asuric worlds and becomes the wife of their most formidable, invulnerable asura. They knew that it was she who destroyed this asura, always during their marital intimacy, while burning down all his chakras, all his asuric abilities and even all his asuric nature. And when we destroyed the 40th such a powerful asura, one of the Asuras couldn't bear, and this Asura cursed me.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

It was probably someone in that Asura's family. Maybe it was his mother or someone else. And this someone else cursed me, that woman, that is who had already burned 40 terrible, unattainable asuras. And that curse said that my real husband should do to me what made me destroy 40 asuras.

How they knew I had a real, eternal husband was unknown to me, but the curse spoke of my real husband, who I could not be with because of a curse that my eternal husband and I had received countless lives before.

But why did this new curse need me and my team? And why did I compel the one who cursed me the second time to do so? And why did I even put that curse in the mind of the person who cursed me?

Well, first of all, this new curse was needed for me and my team, because it was an unfair curse. And that's why it untied my and my team's hands for our further vendetta. It wasn't my fault for destroying those asura. I became his wife and faithfully fulfilled my duties as his wife. I fulfilled all his wishes.

Of course, my team somehow secretly pushed the asura into these orgies, affecting his wishes. But we didn't force him. We didn't force him. He gave in to our suggestion. And in addition, he's been drugging me with some kind of potion or some kind of mystical magic. Because of this, I was not aware of reality; I was free bodily and could not control my actions. He knew I was loyal to him, soul and body, and I would never agree to participate in those orgies. And he did something to me so that I would participate in them without realizing reality.

It was prompted by the invisible actions of my team. They were not incarnated in physical bodies and impacted the asura invisibly from other spheres of being, pushing it to these orgies. But it was the Asura's decision. It was the Asur who decided on these orgies. And it was he who put me into a state of consciousness when I wasn't aware of reality. And he gave me to his buddies in those orgies. I was the victim. I was innocent. I was innocent of nothing.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

Yes, when I discovered that, I destroyed him. But it was the right reaction, because, according to universal law, for humiliating a woman man pays with his life. By destroying him, I was not guilty according to universal law. I was simply paying him back for my humiliation by him. It was only my reaction, lawful, and in accordance with universal laws. And I could not be blamed for it. I was a victim. Even though I destroyed 40 powerful, inaccessible asuras. I was the victim, because no one had the right to do this to me.

But one of the Asuras broke, and when I destroyed the 40th Asura, cursed me. It was their mistake, as I received with this curse the permission to destroy the Asuras without hindrance. I had the opportunity to repay them for their global injustice.

The first curse was just. There's a wise man who gave us back what we did to him and his wife. But in the case of the Asuras, there was nothing to return because I was the victim. I was the woman who was so unjustly, so brutally humiliated by her husband. And thanks to this unjust curse, I have been able to repay the Asuras for this unjust curse. It untied my hands and hands of my team. And we could then act without regard to the rules that limited us until then.

We received, as it were, parliamentary immunity, and some gold seal, which opened the doors to us where they could not be at all. The Asuras, by imposing such an unjust curse on me, have given us permission to destroy them. And that's the first reason why I've gone through all these 40 actions of destroying the Asuras in the same pattern every time, leaving behind an easily identifiable handwriting. But that's not all.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

§9. Conflicting curses. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/3xP6mN4IFD0>

<https://youtu.be/wORUqejZK5c>

That curse was the basis of the split, the ending of the first curse, which said that I should be without my husband. For, according to the second curse, so that my eternal husband could do to me what caused me to destroy those forty asuras, I had to be with my eternal husband together, as with my husband. For I destroyed those asuras because every one of them, every one of my incarnation there, by marrying me, gave me, his wife, to his cronies in their orgies.

And the second curse was to bring me into the same situation, but already when my real, eternal husband would be with me as my husband. But because of the first curse, it was impossible: I was not supposed to be with him according to the first curse. And it turns out that in order for the second curse to be fulfilled, my eternal husband and I had to become husband and wife together, which was completely impossible according to the first curse. One curse contradicted another curse.

And it turned out that as a wedge is knocked out with a wedge, as one thorn is removed with another thorn, and as one fire is extinguished with another fire, so the second curse was needed to stop the first curse, to knock out the first curse with the second curse, to remove the first curse, to extinguish the first curse. And that was what I didn't hide my handwriting for in those forty actions of destroying forty of the most powerful, unattainable asuras.

The second curse was designed to knock out the first curse. One curse separated the eternal couple, and the second curse was meant to bring the couple together. And that's exactly why I acted in the same pattern, drawing fire on myself. And this is the most important thing for which we allowed an omission in our actions, such as the traceability that the same individual did it.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

But for this reunion to happen without aggravating consequences, it required a special action, special conditions.

After all, the second curse said that my eternal husband had to do what caused me to destroy those forty asuras. So he had to be my husband and had to give me up to his buddies in their orgies. But that would be a terrible crime. And he would have suffered a terrible punishment for it, disproportionate to the punishment that would have been suffered by those asuras I destroyed. Because they were nobody to me.

Yes, every new my incarnation one of the asuras became my husband. But, in fact, he was nothing to me, because I am an eternal wife, and I have an eternal husband, and only he is my real husband. Those asuras to me were just passing specimens. And for some asur violated his men's dharma and instead of protecting his wife, he gave her to his cronies in orgies, he certainly should have been punished.

But if the same thing were done to me not by some asur who became my husband in a series of incarnations, but by my real, eternal husband, with whom we were a couple back in the spiritual world, the result would be different. It would have had terrible consequences for him. It would have had terrible, very cruel punishment for him, certainly somewhere in the infernal worlds.

And it was also dangerous for me. Because if my eternal husband had done to me what those asuras did, if he had given me to his cronies in their orgies, I would have found out after a while and destroyed him too. But this is unthinkable: the eternal wife killed her eternal husband. There would be no justification for this, not even that a man pays for the humiliation of a woman with his life.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

It would be a completely different plane of being and completely different laws would work. After all, he was not just a husband for one life, for one incarnation. He was my eternal husband. He and I were a couple back in the spiritual world, before he and I, also together, fell into the material world. And that's a whole different jurisdiction. This was unacceptable.

And something special was needed to soften the effect of the second curse so that it could come to pass, and also so that the first curse could come to an end.

§10. Blessing given by a curse. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/8DK9jrcFBmw>
<https://youtu.be/mNZysPjjRTw>

That special one could only be a great blessing. And this blessing was destined to my eternal husband, who, because of the first curse that parted me from him, became an asur.

In order for him to get the idea of receiving this blessing, I began to show up in his life. He began to feel my invisible presence. Somehow through space, being far away from him, I was coming into contact with him on some energy plane of being, and he felt me. He was feeling the influence of this current flowing between us. Being in this stream of our invisible connection, this magical mystical unity through space, he felt blissful and completely calm, he felt himself in his place.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

But when these fleeting moments of contact and togetherness were ending, he was feeling a strong dissonance with his life in real life, and it made him endlessly miserable and lost. This dissonance was unbearable torture for him, but at the same time it was giving him a clear assurance that his reverie about his Shakti, his soulmate, was not a self-deception or an illusion, because when our contact through space occurred, he clearly felt that here she was, his soulmate, she was real, she was here. And in that moment there was no doubt, for it was more than real.

For many lifetimes before, he had called me many times to his asuric worlds, but I had not come to him, and he was already desperate and thought it was in vain that he thought he was not alone in this vast world. But those contacts through space were like turning on the current between two bare wires, and there was actually a current going on. And the sensation of that current washed away all his doubts and all his despair and instilled confidence and determination.

And then I put the idea in his mind through space that if I could not come to him there, into the asuric worlds, that he himself would go looking for me. And I also put into his mind the idea that in order to succeed in this he had to have some great support from above, he had to perform a severe asceticism and receive a great blessing for our safe reunion. He willingly and decisively accepted these ideas of mine. He didn't know that I had planted all these thoughts in his mind. He thought he was the one thinking it, that it was his idea, that he had finally found a way to bring this magical, mystical unity into the real world. And it seemed logical: if I exist (and he felt it in these moments of togetherness), but for some reason I do not come to him in the asuric worlds at his call, then I cannot do it and, therefore, he must go there himself to me. If the mountain will not come to you, you must go to the mountain.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

And he decided to go himself to this mountain, since this mountain, for some reason, cannot come to him. And before such an uncharted path, especially when you don't know where to go or who to look for, it's certainly best to get a blessing.

And my eternal husband decided to perform a severe asceticism and receive Lord Shiva's blessing to have our safe reunion. In fact, this blessing was necessary to mitigate the fatal threats from the second curse I received from the asuras, which said that my real husband would do to me what caused me to kill those 40 most powerful asuras. According to this curse, my eternal husband was to marry me and give me up to his buddies into orgies, as those 40 most powerful asuras did, which is why I had destroyed them before. But this had irreparable, fatal consequences both for me and for my eternal husband, because he and I are an eternal couple.

And the blessing was actually needed just so that this second curse from the asuras would come true, but so that everything would go well for my eternal husband and me, so that there would be no

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple terrible fatal consequences and so that the effects of this curse would be mitigated. But my eternal husband knew nothing about it. He just decided to go somewhere else worlds to look for me there all over the place. And for this purpose he decided to perform a severe asceticism and receive the blessing of Shiva.

This is how the curse I received from the asuras gave me and my eternal husband the blessing of Shiva. The curse I received from the asuras was fateful for my eternal husband, ending his stay in the asuric worlds and opening for him the way to other worlds and sending him to uncharted lands. This curse determined his entire future destiny, a very unusual one, and bestowed upon him the blessing of Shiva. This blessing was necessary to mitigate the second curse I received from the asuras, which was to put an end to the first curse that my eternal husband and I had received countless lifetimes before.

But there had to be a good reason for getting this blessing. There had to be a need for something special, significant, out of the ordinary, and that was my eternal husband's decision to leave the asuric worlds and seek me out in the other worlds, having received a blessing before this. And it turned out that the blessing of our reunion was bestowed upon us by a curse I received from the asuras.

§11. A bizarre interweaving of curse and blessing. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/kxU9Mb8a25I>

<https://youtu.be/tk9z3cQ9JaE>

My eternal husband performed austerities to Lord Shiva, seeking blessings for an auspicious reunion with his shakti, his eternal soulmate,

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple that is me. And as a consequence, after a while he received this blessing.

It was now possible to leave the asuric worlds and go into the uncharted distances to look for me. A curse from one of the asuras (that my husband would have to give me to his cronies in orgies after marrying me) and also the blessings of Lord Shiva for a favorable reunion worked on our reunion.

This curse and blessing intertwined in a bizarre way and charted a new course, drawing a new life line in my eternal husband's destiny. In order to ensure that, as per the curse, my husband would give me away to the orgies for his cronies, but at the same time to ensure that by the blessings of Shiva there would be no spooky moments (as our reunion was to be an auspicious one), fate switched the arrows and the train of my eternal husband's life turned to other tracks - towards his recruitment into the interstellar troop of the asuras and his dizzying career there.

In such a case, both the curse from the asuras and the blessing of Shiva, intertwined with each other, could be fulfilled to the fullest extent without interfering with each other. The intertwining of the curse with the blessing was momentous for my eternal husband and made him inevitable that he would become a great asura, an RA, at the top of the asuric career ladder.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

The point is that an asur who has reached the level of RA can act on the subtle, energetic level of being and for him there is no difference whether something happens on the physical level of being, in physical reality, or on some subtle plane, on the level of energy flows. And asuras who have become RA and have a large organization of asuras under them, in the landing of asuras in other worlds, indulge in such orgies, on the subtle energy plane of being, during which they siphon off from their victims their pious merits.

And these orgies on the energetic plane of being would fit well with both the curse about orgies and the condition of a favorable reunion according to Shiva's blessing.

Asur RA can connect on the energy plane of being to women and during the release of energy from a woman at the peak of her pleasure can invisibly siphon off her luck and her treasures - pious merits earned by her during many lives, when she did something good for the benefit of others, performed some ascetics, kept fasts and sacrificed her desires. This energetic connection and coordination of the whole process is carried out by asuras who have reached the level of RA, kings of asuras. They connect to the victim and connect to her through their channel other asuras from their organization, on some subtle, energetic level of being, and all of them feel all this action as if they themselves, personally, are physically there and do it all physically. The asur RA connects other asuras to the woman through his channel, and the result is a kind of fan connection.

And that was exactly what fit both the curse (that my husband would give me away to his cronies) and the condition of the blessing of our favorable reunion. At such energetic fan connection, the curse from asuras would be realized, because in essence it is orgies, and since this fan connection would take place not on the physical, but not on some invisible, energetic level of being, the condition of blessing about favorable reunion would be observed, because on the physical plane nothing of this kind would take place.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

That is, by becoming a big asur RA in the interstellar asur troop, hooking up with me and connecting asuras from his asuric organization to me through himself to siphon my pious merits out of me during ejecting energy from me at the peak of my pleasure, my eternal husband would essentially be giving me over to his cronies in their orgies.

And so, the curse from the asuras would be realized. But at the same time there would be nothing like this on the physical plane, because everything would happen on the energetic fan connection, invisible, not perceptible to me and completely unrecognized by me. It would and wouldn't be at the same time. And it was in this case that the curse and the blessing could be realized without interfering with each other.

And to make it happen, my eternal husband had one road that he could not avoid - recruitment into the interstellar landing force of the asuras, where he would travel to other worlds in search of me and a dizzying career with the asuras, reaching the highest level - the level of RA, a great asur, leading a large organization of asuras. And there was no way my husband could have avoided this scenario of his life. Fate had decided everything for him, and he had no choice but to submit to the will of time, enlist in the interstellar landing force of the asuras, become a Universal pirate chasing Universal treasures - pious merits, and rise to the top of the asuric hierarchical ladder.

§12. Alien intervention at the stage of zygote formation. I'm asura's wife

My eternal husband received Shiva's blessing for our safe reunion and then, in order to go looking for me on other worlds, enlisted in the asuras' landing party on other worlds. He then went through special training, got a lot of incredible specs and options that would be useful in the asuras' interstellar landing party, and then went through the standard asuras' transfer to other planets to other worlds.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

It wasn't a space flight. Asuras don't come in flying saucers or spaceships. They don't take over worlds the way they do in alien invasion movies. The asuras do things differently. Their invasion is invisible, as they are simply born to the inhabitants of the planets they colonize.

And in order to be born, they go through a certain procedure, when an asur is immersed in a certain non-manifested state, not in a physical body, but in a subtle, etheric one. Then in such an invisible, as if subtle energy state, in such a non-disclosed energy anabiosis he is placed in a certain energy capsule, which is also in a non-disclosed state.

And then in this energy capsule, by some invisible energy ray from the asuric worlds, he is transported to another world, to the planet needed in each particular case. There, this energy capsule with this asur inside is somehow supernaturally energetically planted somehow, as if stitched into some of the women of this planet in her ovaries.

And this energy capsule can stay in her ovaries for a long time in such a non-displayed state. And so, this asur can sleep in a woman's ovaries for years, not showing its presence and being as if in anabiosis, in some etheric, subtle state. But it ends at the moment when this woman undergoes ordinary fertilization.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

When such a woman undergoes ordinary fertilization, as a result of conception a zygote is formed, a kind of a nest in which her child, the soul that came to her by karma, is to grow. But just at the moment when that soul enters the newly formed zygote, the energetic capsule opens, the asur in energetic anabiosis as if hatched out of it and immediately enters the zygote after the soul that came to her.

There are two different souls in one zygote: the one that was supposed to become a child of this woman, and the one that at the moment of zygote formation hatched out of the opened energy capsule activated in the ovaries of the woman as a result of her physical fertilization. And the second soul, asur, according to his program begins to push out of the zygote the soul that entered there first.

The asur, who was in energetic anabiosis, squeezes out of the zygote the soul that was to be born as a child to this woman. The asur throws this soul out of the zygote, exactly as a cuckoo pushes its competitors out of the nest in which the mother cuckoo put it.

And to this woman her real child is not born, because his place turns out to be occupied, and he was banished from it. The zygote, to which he had every right and which was to be his personal nest, becomes occupied by some asuras, who in a kind of energetic anabiosis has been waiting for this moment for years.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

And so, this asur, who came stealthily from the asuric worlds by some energy ray and embedded in a woman in an energetic form in an energy capsule, is given the opportunity to begin his service in the interstellar landing party of the asuras.

This is a hundred percent spy cover story: introduction on different planets through being born to the inhabitants of these planets as their children. It's just as a spy network is introduced on the territory of a foreign country: the participants of this network create a legend, some autobiography, some life events, documents. And many agents really live there like everyone else, pretending to be their own, but in fact they are sleeping, they are like sleeper agents. They are waiting for the moment when they can wake up and start their spying or subversive activities. It's the same with the asuras.

When a woman is fertilized and a zygote is formed, the asur occupies that zygote and begins to create his legend. He is born and lives like everyone else. And no one will think that it is not the child that should have been born to this woman, but some kind of an alien, a stranger from other worlds. According to chromosomes he is a hundred percent biological child of biological parents, from whom he was born, the zygote is made of their egg and sperm. And there's nothing to go on.

Thus, quite imperceptibly, at the zygote stage, the asuras are introduced into our society and then born among us. They live among us as ordinary looking people, because they are born in a human body. And so, they do on different planets, being born among the inhabitants of those planets and living among them, dissolving among the society and developing their cover legend, as a saboteur, an infiltrator, introduced into the territory of the enemy for spying and subversion, develops his legend-biography.

And my eternal husband has been born through such a transference every time since he enlisted in an asuric landing on other worlds. In this troop he had a dizzying career and ascended to the top of the asuric hierarchical ladder.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

§13. An extraordinary path to your dreams. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/QxQI1knlcg0>

<https://youtu.be/bOP9YqrD8TU>

After receiving Shiva's blessings for a safe reunion with his eternal wife, the asur husband enlisted in the interstellar troop of asuras, underwent transference to the desired planet and began his service in that troop. In this, episode 13, I'll talk about the unusual journey that awaited him there.

So, in the remake novel «I'm asura's wife», I am an eternal wife, I have an eternal husband, and he and I are an eternal couple who find ourselves separated as a result of a curse that made my eternal husband an asur and me a destroyer of asuras.

My eternal husband, who became an asur to find me, his eternal wife, enlisted in an interstellar asuric landing party and through the capture of an alien zygote on a given planet was born there, and so began his multi-life odyssey in search of his eternal, original wife.

At first, he was an unremarkable pawn. In the asuric worlds, because he could have no children by the curse that caused us to become separated and could not give any of the clans an heir, he was on the low end of the scale and could not expect any advancement. But things were different in the asuras' landing party. That's not what was valued here. His inability to have children was not only not an obstacle to his career growth, but became to some extent even his trump card, because, not having such a weak point as his children, he was immune to coercion and blackmail with the use of his children, he was not held back or constrained and could go on the most risky assignments.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

He had no weakness and could not be manipulated by threatening the lives of his loved ones, as he never had any real loved ones there. He went to troop asuras to other worlds, only to seek me, his eternal wife. He clearly realized that all the women with whom he got together there, he, in fact, no one, a passing option, so, just to satisfy his lust and indulge his ego. And if it was necessary to sacrifice those women, he did so without hesitation, without a second's concern for their safety or well-being. Out of sight, out of mind.

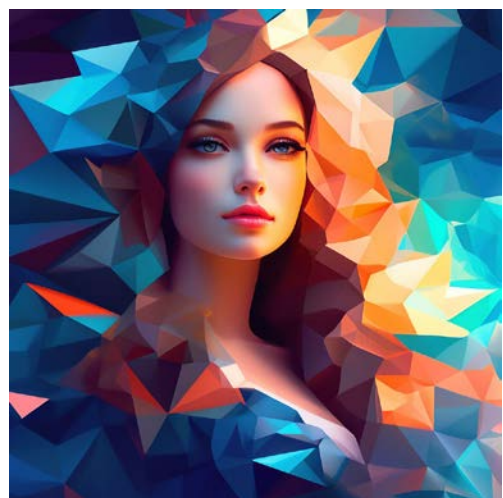

He was on his way to his dream of finding his eternal wife, and he didn't care about the well-being and safety of some other women with whom he simply shared a bed and some part of his life.

To keep him mindful of why he went to other worlds in the first place,

I periodically visited him in dream territory. It could be called a dream, since it was happening while he was asleep, but at the same time it wasn't just a dream. There he and I actually met, and there he felt a direct current flowing between us as if we were two halves of the same whole. These as if dreams, and in fact encounters in dream territory, kept him from losing sight of his goal.

And he was looking for me, using my image, a mold of those dreams. He'd made connections with some of the best seekers in the asuras, the kind of trackers who could find a person by using their image in dream territory, and he'd used them to find me. But their services were very expensive, and in order to keep up with them and have the means to pay for their services, my asur husband, in addition to his regular duties in the asur troop, began taking risky high-paying orders from unscrupulous asuras who wanted results, at any cost, with any blood, both great and small.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

Because he was cold-blooded, ruthless in this business, and nothing held him back or could embarrass him, he became the best of the best hired men to do the dirty work. He became well known in certain circles among the asuras for not recognizing any moral standards and taking up any work, no matter how dirty it was, as long as it paid well. He only had one rule: never quit until the job is done.

In doing so, he shamelessly sacrificed anything and everything to fulfill his mission. He was willing to trample anyone to achieve his goal. If necessary, he quietly and idly betrayed, sold out, framed others. He just needed a lot of money to pay those identity seekers using her image. He was looking for me and for the sake of it he swept away any piece from the chessboard of life without sparing or sparing it.

And so, he gained a certain kind of reputation among the asuras, and he began to be promoted up the asuric hierarchical ladder. His growth in his asuric career was rapid, and towards the end he reached there ceiling — the RA step. RA is a great asur who holds a great network of asuras under him and has mystical powers supernatural in our understanding. He became capable of operating on an energy plane of existence, siphoning pious merits from others, and doing many other things beyond our comprehension.

As an RA, as a kind of spider, in charge of a large network of subordinate asuras, he got the ability to connect on the energy plane of existence to women, to connect asuras from his asuric organization through himself to drain women of their pious merits, and all this during the ejection of a woman's feminine energy at the peak of her intimate pleasure.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

It was for this that fate led him down such an unusual path. Because in order to fulfill both the curse of the asuras (that he gave me to his friends in orgies) and the blessing of Shiva (about our safe reunion), it was necessary that the orgies both were and were not at the same time, and this could happen only if he became a great RA asur with an organization of asuras under him and would be able to organize orgies on the energy level, which were actually aimed at siphoning off women's pious merits.

The orgies were and were not at the same time. There were orgies, for he was connecting to the woman and connecting his asuras to her invisibly on an energy connection at a distance in her intimacy. But also, orgies as if there were no orgies, because the whole action took place on the energetic connection, and not on the physical plane: on the physical plane there was nothing like that, and the woman did not even guess that she was impudently fucked at a distance by some asuras.

The time lines led my asur husband down this unusual path only for him to reach the highest rung of the asuric hierarchical ladder where he would be able to have orgies on an energetic level, as this fulfilled both the curse of orgies and the blessing of a successful reunion.

Reaching the top of this hierarchical ladder for my asur husband was inevitable, and providence in full accordance with this purpose chose for him such a path as his destiny as an unscrupulous hired performer of dirty work, who is ready for any meanness, in the hope of getting at least a little closer to his coveted unattainable star — his shakti, his eternal wife. And on this path, he saw nothing but his goal, and he was ready to sacrifice anything and anyone, he was obsessed with this star, as Gollum from «Lord of the Rings» was obsessed with the ring of omnipotence and was ready to go to any meanness, just to seize it. I was for my asur husband the coveted treasure, the very precious for the sake of which he could step over anyone, could deceive, lie, frame and destroy anyone.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

§14. The price of wish fulfillment. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/i5ilWdupzRI>

<https://youtu.be/YTXNJ6uH-vo>

In the asuric worlds in which my asuric husband resided before the asuric landing, because he could have no children by the curse that caused us to become separated and could give no heir to any of the clans, he was on low account with the asuras and could not expect to marry successfully.

In the asuric worlds, because he could have no children and could not give any of the clans an heir because of the curse that caused us to be separated, he was in low esteem with the asuras and could not count on good luck in marriage. None of the decent clans would give him their daughter as a wife. So, he'd made do with low-grade asuri women and never thought of doing anything else. But things were different in the asuric landing on other worlds.

There, the asuras did not care which of the aboriginal women of those planets he matched with, and a large world of women — the original inhabitants of those planets — opened up before him, where he began to be born as part of the invisible landing force of the asuras.

First there my eternal asur husband became a hired performer of dirty work for the asuras, and then he reached the ceiling in his career — he became RA — a great asur, holding a large organization of asuras under him and having mystical abilities unbelievable in our understanding.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

He became in the eyes of society an enviable groom and could get any woman he wanted. He was rich, interesting, attractive to women, charming, intelligent, and so on down the list of qualities of a man desired by women. In their eyes, he was a real man, the very man whose companion the lion's share of women, and practically every woman, wants to be.

Appetite grows while eating. And his appetite for women only grew. Looking for me, his eternal wife, he continued to be a man to whom nothing, as they say, is alien to humanity. He longed for love and wanted a woman worthy of his level, an RA, a great asur.

He's got a lot of luck with the women there. Many women fall into his arms, marvelous, delightful women, which in the asuric worlds he would be afraid even to think about, and having found among them the woman he desires, worthy of his exalted claims, he after some time of gallant and beautiful courtship becomes her husband, and all is well with them. He is on the top of bliss: next to a wonderful woman in whom all his ideas and wishes about his life partner converge, as in one point. Life is good. What else is there to wish for?

One can only wish that this woman beside him always radiates joy and pleases her eyes. He takes great pleasure and satisfaction in spoiling her and fulfilling her sweet whims. He likes

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple to see in her eyes delight and admiration for him, especially when he fulfills her desires that she never told anyone at all and only dreamed of. He is pleased when she thinks about him, how lucky she is to have such a marvelous man, so sensitive to her moods and anticipating her wishes, as her husband. In fact, he doesn't just subtly sense her moods and anticipate her wishes. He actually sees them. Being an RA, a great asur with incredible mystical powers, he is literally in her mind and sees everything she thinks and wants. He simply sees her wishes, reading her thoughts like an open book, and fulfills them.

But not all desires can be fulfilled. Some of them are not due to us by karma: we have not earned them; the account of piety lacks pious merits to pay off the acquisition of the fulfillment of this desire.

And he, seeing that some wish of his woman cannot come true for one reason or another, begins to wish that it should come true after all. And since he and I are an eternal couple and I am his eternal wife, by my eternal, original position destined to fulfill his desire, then from my piety account for the fulfillment of his desire the funds, my pious merits, which can cover the fulfillment of his desire, are automatically transferred.

It's like standing in front of a checkout counter in a store, you have the things you want in your basket, you hold out your bank card to the payment terminal, and it says that the funds on your card are insufficient. You get upset, but suddenly some well-wisher transfers the missing amount to your card, and you, happy and joyful, take all your purchases and go home.

And so it is with my eternal husband, simply because he and I are an eternal couple, the most real twin flames. He, as my man, is destined to protect me and organize my life, and I, as his woman, am destined to help him with the fulfillment of his desires, including with the help of my pious merits.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

The woman who has become his wife cannot have all her desires fulfilled, and he, wishing to see the delight and admiration in her eyes, wishes that these unfulfilled desires of hers be fulfilled. And from my piety account, even though he and I are not together, funds are automatically transferred to fulfill his wish. That woman's wish is granted, at the expense of my pious merits. And the more unfulfilled her desire, the higher its price, the more pious merit is required for its fulfillment, the more of it is withdrawn from my account of piety, and the lower and more painfully I fall as a result of it. And I fall down from my level, because it turns out that I lack funds for my being on it.

I am falling. I am losing something important to me in my life because I don't have the means to pay for it and have it in my life. Unattainable dream of his woman comes true, he is happy, seeing how happy she is, and I am falling, and it hurts, I am losing something valuable, I am losing close, dear to me people, dear to my heart pets, favorite plants, means of livelihood, housing I lived in before, health, which I did not think about until that moment, things I love, some valuable and important for me skills and abilities, all these things flowed away from me like sand flows through my fingers. I have to fall from my habitual, comfortable and convenient level, which I had been climbing for a long time before, and to put myself back together piece by piece, starting my life from scratch. And since it comes as a result of his desire, it turns out that my eternal husband is the cause of my fall, because we are not together and my pious merits flow not to our happy existence (that is, and mine, too), but to fulfill the desires of a woman who is a stranger to me, leaving me with nothing.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

And for this he gets a boomerang — his very painful fall from his level. And since my fall occurred as a result of the fulfillment of desire of his woman, his fall comes to him through her. He's forced to go through the collapse of his entire life, when everything in his life collapses, and on the external plane because of her, and he has to pick himself up in pieces and start his life from scratch. And that's the price to pay for the fulfillment of a wish.

§15. The many-faced boomerang of fate. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/gu6IMEnMCbc>

<https://youtu.be/ATb1AKr3TQw>

We had received the curse that separated us countless lifetimes ago, but it continued to affect us all the time after that. The curse was put upon us by a wise man, who, because of my eternal husband and me, had been deserted by his wife, so that he was left all alone and lived out his life all alone, without wife and children. And in one moment, being in utter despair and inconsolable, he cursed me to be alone, without my husband, as the wife who had left him had become alone, without her husband. And he also cursed my eternal husband so that he would have no children of his own and live the last years of his life all alone. And because of this curse my eternal husband could not have a happy family life with any woman, because his family life could not last long, because according to the curse he had to live the last years of his life alone, all alone, that is, without a wife.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

And this was realized in his life in different ways, regardless of what woman was with him. And he chose women like thoroughbred horses, and only the best, the most selected women were with him. He was attracted to the most luxurious women — beautiful, educated, cultured, with a good upbringing, with gloss, the ability to hold and present themselves. He liked women pleasing to the eye, charming, feminine, intelligent, faithful, having a high birth, gorgeous figure, pleasant manners. He liked refined natures, refined, pleasant, sensual, pleasing to the eye, with elegant speech, beautiful forms, who believed that every woman was born for happiness and she is certainly worthy of it. He liked it when his wife had ambitions and many desires, as it gave him a great field for maneuvering and applying his abilities and taste for life.

But everything in the world has its downside. And too much desire for a woman who became his wife caused a portion of pious merits to be removed from my piety account in order to fulfill my eternal husband's desire for the fulfillment of his woman's desire, causing me to fall from my level. This ricocheted toward my eternal husband and broke his family, for his family caused me to fall painfully.

No matter how wonderful his woman was, the fulfillment of her desire ricocheted back at him, and the boomerang of fate always came to him through her, and something unpredictable was bound to happen to her. This was so that through her he would feel the bitterness of the fall, similar to the bitterness of the fall that I felt when my pious merits left me for the fulfillment of her wish.

Her cherished wish was fulfilled, as if miraculously (and in fact thanks to the infusion of my pious merits), and after that an incredible, unpredictable metamorphosis suddenly happened to her. In each case, the boomerang of fate had its own, in some way unique pattern, but always an unpleasant metamorphosis happened to his woman. This was happening because it was necessary for him to receive his defeat precisely through her, for I was falling precisely because of the fulfillment of her wish.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

For example, according to one of the many scenarios of plot development, there was a man in her surroundings for whom she suddenly had an all-consuming love that she could not do anything about. My asur husband, being an RA, a big asur under whom there was a big organization of asuras, who could see the thoughts of others and influence them, saw with the help of his incredible mystical abilities the feelings and desires of his wife and tried to influence her, to press on her consciousness. But every time he failed, which hurt his ego. For some reason, it was in this case that his incredible abilities suddenly did not work. And she left him for her great love.

Or, in another scenario, the wife would suddenly out of the blue become disgusted with intimacy with him. She would suddenly become nauseous at his touch and disgusted by his odor. She began to dread even the thought of intimacy with him and tried to avoid it in every possible way, finding various reasons to do so. This hurt him very much and infringed upon his manhood, and as her condition was already irretrievable, he had no choice but to get rid of her and find another woman to be his wife.

And he would throw her into the arms of another man. He would find a man to whom he felt he could give his wife. Then he would mentally press so hard on their minds, forcing them closer together, that his wife would leave him for that man. My asur husband looked like a victim in the eyes of society, because it looked as if she had cheated on him and left him for another man.

Or suddenly, in yet another scenario, his wife suddenly became allergic to intimacy with him, and after every intimacy with him, she would suddenly get cystitis and candidiasis. She never lost her desire for him. Both emotionally and intimately they were fine, and she had tender feelings for him and wanted him, but after every intimacy with him she suddenly started to get severe cystitis and candidiasis. And because of this she gradually began to reduce their sex life to nothing. And because he needed sex, he had to get rid of her. He'd throw her back into the arms of some other man. Again, he would mentally press on her minds and force her to leave. Again, his wife was a cheater, and he was a husband who had been cheated on by his wife and left him for some other man.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

Or, for example, in another scenario, his wife suddenly developed a strong libido. She could not do anything about it and fell into bed with any man. She slept with his friends, his business partners, his bodyguards, and even his gardener, groom, chauffeur, plumber, and so on, the list is endless. He had no way of influencing her behavior, even with his incredible mystical powers. She did it with anyone, anywhere. Even in their marital bed. And he pressed again on his wife's consciousness and invisibly forced her to leave him for one of her lovers. Although she had no intention of leaving him and her secure and carefree life with him. But he was not satisfied with this state of affairs, and he again squeezed another wife out of his life.

And so, it happened every time. Something unpredictable and unpleasant was bound to happen to his wife, after the fulfillment of her cherished wish, for the fulfillment of which my pious merits were directed as a result of his wish, because he and I are an eternal couple, an autonomous system looped on each other. He was to receive a painful blow and the wrecking of his life, because the fulfillment of her wish would result in the wrecking of my life because of my loss of a large portion of pious merits. And it was to come to him through his woman. Such would be the boomerang of fate, each time having a new appearance, but invariably coming to him.

Something unpredictable and unpleasant always happened to her. And every time it was very painful for him. It was a cruel blow to his self-esteem and manhood. And he was forced himself, with the help of his mental order and pressure on the mental level, to transfer his woman to another man, remaining alone.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

This was the effect of the curse that separated us, the effect of which was that he could not be long with anyone, for by the end of his life he had to be alone and live the last years of his life alone, without a wife or children, which, in fact, he could not have had at all. And something like this was inevitable, since his family life could not last a lifetime.

§16. A young, strong body. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/VNvhFurF5iw>

<https://youtu.be/BOjD1OpbSE0>

My eternal husband and I are an eternal couple, which was a couple in the spiritual world before our fall into the material world. And that is why we are an autonomous system, designed to maintain the couple in a stable state. The husband provides full comprehensive protection for his wife, arranges her life and takes care of her, and the wife does everything to fulfill her husband's desires. And to this, among other things, her pious merits are directed. And this does not change even if the couple finds themselves separated for some reason.

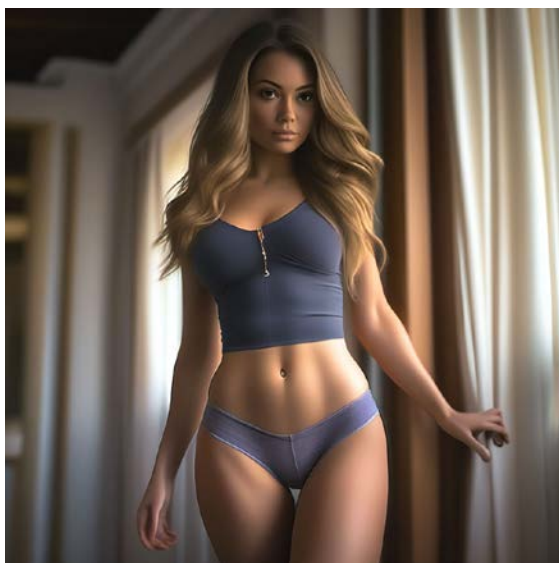

And that is why pious merits were withdrawn from my account of piety, at the expense of which the clouded wishes of the woman who for some time became the wife of my eternal husband during his service in the asuras' landing on other worlds were fulfilled. It was his wish. It was his wish that some clouded wish of his wife, which had not and could not come true, should come true, and that she should radiate happiness and joy when she was with him. He was wanting, and I was fulfilling it.

I didn't know that. Everything was happening by itself. A portion of the pious merits needed to fulfill my eternal husband's wish (to fulfill the wish of the woman who had become his wife somewhere far away from me, his eternal wife) was being withdrawn from my piety account by itself. When I was deprived of this portion of pious merits, I was falling from my level and lost something of value to myself. Because of this, my eternal husband would receive a boomerang of fate that would ruin his family life there. But it was not always like that.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

Not all of his wives had desires that were not destined to come true, and the fulfillment of which required a significant infusion of pious merits from the outside. It was happening so that his wife became a woman who had a sufficient stock of piety to fulfill her desires, because he chose the best female representatives, and achieving a high position is possible only with a large stock of piety. His wife could be a woman whose pious merits were sufficient to fulfill his desires, or who did not have too exalted desires that could not be fulfilled. And in such a case, the boomerang of fate that ruined my eternal husband's married life was not there, for my life was not ruined because of it. But the curse that my eternal husband received many lifetimes ago, and because of which, among other things, he and I were separated, said that he should be all alone at the end of his life. And alone means without a wife. And so, his married life, even with such a wonderful woman who had no unfulfilled desires, had to end.

And in perfect harmony with this, when his wife was reaching the golden autumn of her life, she was ceasing to interest him as a woman. He began to want a young, strong, hot female body, flawless in its youth and beauty. And he, of course, was finding what he wanted — a beautiful person, with a young strong body, eager for carnal pleasures, without complexes, who was not stopped by the fact that the man was married, and very happily.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

My asur husband had no intention of getting rid of his wife. He thought that nothing in their married life would change, that he and his wife would continue to live together, but he just needed to have fun with this young beautiful sexy woman to satisfy his body. He was not embarrassed by the big age difference with this young woman, and he was not going to get rid of his wife and marry a young woman.

But that wasn't her plan. She wanted more than a relationship. And he was falling into the trap of fate: he had to choose. And in this dispute, the young, strong body was winning, because his wife's withering body was no match for it.

And he again, as with his other wives, had to find another man for his wife, press invisibly, on the mental plane of existence, on their minds, pushing his wife into the arms of another man.

It was not an easy task, for his wife was by nature faithful and had a large reserve of piety which was protecting her from breach of marital fidelity, but my asur husband was a master at his work. He masterfully squeezed his wife, and in the end, he squeezed her consciousness, and she, not wanting it at all and resisting it with all her strength, still went to another man. Again, my asur husband looked in the eyes of the society as an innocent lamb who had been cheated by his wife, who had skillfully pretended to be a chaste wife all her life, but in reality, turned out to be a lecherous,

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple treacherous and treacherous beast. And he was already openly, without fear of causing a wave of outrage from the outside, brought into his life that person with a young strong body.

And that is when he was hit by the boomerang of fate, because his wife was by nature faithful and did not leave him of her own free will, it was his invisible influence on her, pressure on her consciousness on the mental plane of existence, it was his mental order to her — to leave for another man. And from a higher perspective she was the victim, who was forced to violate the duty of an honest faithful wife, forcibly breaking her fidelity and actually putting her under another man against her will.

And it was causing a blow to him. Something bad was happening to him that knocked him out of the saddle.

In some cases, he'd have a stroke and paralyzed by a stroke, in some cases he'd get dementia and become incapacitated, or he'd be was in a car accident and be knocked out of active life and could no longer run his business. He was out of business, and a young woman with a young strong body took over all his property, all his assets and somehow got rid of him as an unnecessary ballast and burden.

He was left towards the end of his life all alone, in a helpless state, and the curse about his loneliness at the end of his life worked.

Something like this happened to him on other occasions, namely, when his life was already rolling to the sunset and he had another wife with him after the arrival of another boomerang in the form of the collapse of his family life. And this next wife of his could still be quite young, and it could be that it was not a matter of fulfilling her cherished unfulfilled desire, or she had no such desires for which she lacked her store of piety. He could have met the sunset of his life with her and been together to the end. But the curse did not allow this course of events, and something bad happened to him. As a result, he, no longer useful, was discarded like junk, and lived out his life abandoned by everyone.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

The best scenario for him was when at the end of his life he was just alone, without a wife or just a woman. After another boomerang of fate destroyed his happy family life, he had a lot of fun with different women and then decided that he had had enough of this and would rather be alone. In that case, the curse was sparing him and did not breaking him. But the result was the same: he was alone. The curse had always worked, just in different situations in different ways, but regardless of the situations and the women he was or was not with, in each of his lives, my asur husband had spent the last few years living completely alone. He was either abandoned by everyone or became a voluntary recluse.

§17. Lust for redress. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/V5ZXB2gLRys>

<https://youtu.be/Cycgr9-bYrw>

My asur husband left the asuric worlds and enlisted in the invisible interstellar landing of asuras on other worlds. Each time after that, his family life was ending in total collapse. He had to, figuratively speaking, go through heart surgery. Some metamorphosis were happening to his wife there, as a result of which their married life could no longer continue, and he had to get rid of his wife.

After he was squeezing her out of his life and she supposedly was leaving him of her own free will, he would start calculating the damages and losses he had incurred in that marriage and in ending it.

First and foremost, on the list of damages and losses was the fact that he had to undergo this sort of heart surgery. From the outside, it was all because of his wife, as unpleasant metamorphoses usually happened to her. It was painful for him. It was a blow to his self-esteem and his manhood, an indication of his failure as a man. It was a blow to his male pride. And it was a humiliation to him as a man. It was costly, and she, from his point of view, had to pay dearly for it.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

The second in the list of damages and losses was his forced decision to get rid of her (well, if she herself did not run away from him to her sudden all-encompassing love for another man). Here was added moral damage and lost profit: he thought to live happily ever after with her, but he was deceived in his best expectations and did not get what he wanted in full. She could not get away with the moral damage and lost profit, my asur husband thought.

Also, on the list of damages and losses was his search for a suitable man to give his wife to. After all, it was necessary not to give her to just anyone, but that the man corresponded to her preferences, so that it would be easier to get rid of her and that everything would be understood in the eyes of society. It takes a lot of time and it's also very unpleasant. As has been said, problem solved, however, the unpleasant residue remained... There was always an unpleasant residue. And for this residue and for the forced and not at all desirable consideration of the preferences of his wife and society someone had to pay.

And his efforts to squeeze her out of his life, as well as to get that man interested in her and make moves to get closer to her. His efforts to get his wife and the other man together. It was to make him look like an innocent sheep, hurt and offended in his purest feelings. It was on that list of grievances and resentments too.

And of course, on that list was the search for a new candidate for the role of his wife. And a new pressure on the consciousness of this new woman to tame her and lead her according to his desired scenario. Exploring this new candidacy. Here, too, there was time and effort and money spent on productive courtship and effective flirtation.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

And also, years of life with that ex-wife. He invested a lot in her, he gave her many gifts, he took her to different places, he spent his money on her and his strength, time, feelings. He spent a lot of money on her. And who will compensate this loss and this damage now, my asur husband was resenting.

He was calculating his losses and damages and was going to the conclusion that there was no limit to his indignation and that he had to compensate for it all, preferably more than enough to make his resentment towards her go away. He had to compensate for his failure and his humiliation by this woman who was his wife. And he was deciding that now he had every right to siphon off her pious merits and pour into her another's sinful karma. She had to pay the full price, so that this unpleasant residue would dissolve and he could finally leave her behind: so that there would be no one to look back on at all. He had to erase her completely.

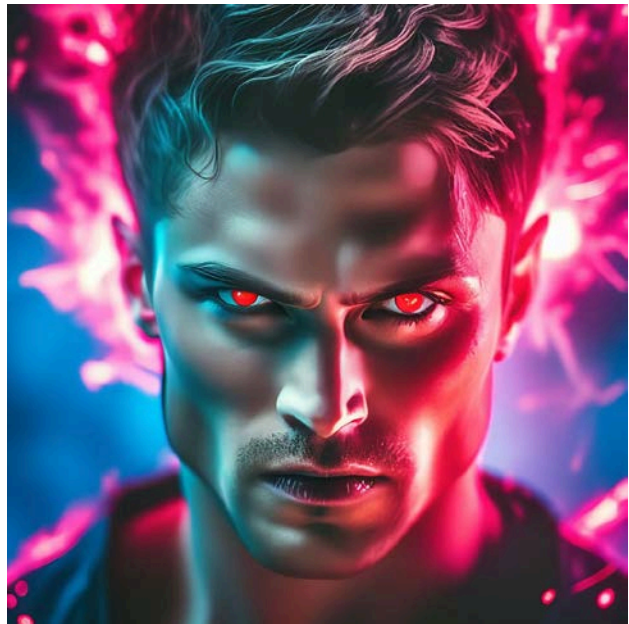

He felt he had the right to do it. And there was an impenetrable logic to it. She'd screwed up. She'd left her husband for another man. Yes, she had done it not of her own free will, but in obedience to his mental pressure on her mind and his mental order. But she was the one who left him. She was the one who had left him. It was her actions on the physical plane, in the physical reality. And by that she violated the laws of the Universe. He was an asur, and asuras are like purifiers of the Universe. They are free to erase those who violate the laws of the Universe in one way or another.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

She had been his wife before and was therefore untouchable. She was faithful, and therefore, according to the laws of the Universe, the asuras had no right of access to her. But here she herself (as it were) left her husband, broke the vow of fidelity, and the asuras got the right of access to her and full permission to do with her whatever the asuras wished.

And he, looking at the list of losses and damages, was deciding that it would be the height of folly and disrespect to himself not to compensate for his losses and damages and not to compensate for his humiliation by her. He was deciding that he had every right to humiliate her as a woman and do to her what the asuras usually did in their invisible interstellar landing of asuras on different worlds.

He was deciding that she was no longer his wife and that he had every right to take full advantage of her and take everything he could from her in order to get satisfaction, and to recoup the time, nerves, money, mental and energetic work with her (he did all this to make her feel good about herself and to get her to leave him for someone else afterwards). He was deciding that she would pay him for everything, and that she would pay very dearly, and that she would be humiliated as a woman, and he was deciding to drain her of her pious merits and pour into her someone else's sinful karma.

In a general form it's like a kind of direct blood transfusion, though somewhat perverted, when, for example, a sheep is drained of its pure blood and someone else's contaminated and infected blood is injected into it. Only here the pure blood is pious merits, and the contaminated and polluted blood is someone's heavy sinful karma, someone's sinful reactions that have to be worked off.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

And my asur husband, in order to establish, as he thought, justice and to get satisfaction, completely cold-bloodedly and ruthlessly decided to start siphoning off her good fortune and pouring other people's misfortunes into her.

§18. A brilliant revenge. I'm asura's wife

https://youtu.be/-xN9o_-2Scg

<https://youtu.be/jnReoHRb2N4>

The curse that separated my eternal husband and me was preventing my eternal husband from having a long happy married life with any of the women, however wonderful and maximally suited to him she might be. Each of his marriages, with any of the women, ended in a violent collapse, and as the cause of this, as it appeared to him, was his wife, he was determining that she should pay very dearly for it, and for all the years she had spent with him, and repay him, and more than enough, for what he had spent on her.

He was resolving that he would siphon off all her good fortune from her and throw in other people's misfortunes, so that she, left without her good fortune, without her pious merits, would fall to the lowest rungs of society, know the collapse of all her desires, and be humiliated by all.

And he was bidding her as a lot in the asuric trade exchange. His business proposition on this trade invisible exchange included both siphoning off her pious merits, her good fortune, and throwing into her other people's sinful reactions, other people's troubles. And just for throwing his troubles into her, the asuras paid him money most of all. After all, who wants to work out sinful reactions? No one wants to suffer. Everyone just wants to enjoy and be on top of life.

And the asuras have well mastered the way of not working out their sinful reactions. It's simple. You just have to find someone in whom you can throw these sinful reactions, as in a garbage can, and transfer to him the working out of your sinful reactions. And for this purpose, among other things, the asuras need their interstellar landing on other worlds. Of course, the main purpose of this landing of asuras is to siphon off pious merits from the inhabitants of other worlds and pump these treasures, this currency of the Universe, into the asuric worlds. But not only for siphoning off other people's good fortune, asuras invisibly take birth among the inhabitants of different worlds and live there among them, but also for throwing off their sinful reactions, their troubles.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

The inhabitants of other worlds for asuras act, firstly, as donors from whom one can siphon off the universal currency — pious merits, at the expense of which we get what we want in this world. And secondly, the inhabitants of other worlds for asuras act as garbage cans, into which one can throw his troubles, his sinful reactions, so that these troubles bypass the asuras and fall on the poor unfortunate «garbage can».

The asuras benefit greatly from the inhabitants of different worlds, and so the asuras invisibly fight the reptiloids and all sorts of invaders who just need to take over a planet and don't need the population of the planet being invaded.

And on our planet Earth there is a war between asuras and reptiloids, which is not visible to our eyes. Reptiloids don't want humans, they want our planet and its natural resources. Reptiloids don't need humans. They may need very few humans as slaves, as service personnel. That is why the reptiloids are pursuing a policy of reducing the population of the Earth in one way or another.

Asuras, however, do not benefit from this, as they need human beings as donors (from whom the asuras siphon off pious merits) and as «garbage cans» (into which the asuras throw their sinful reactions).

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

But that is not what we are talking about now. Our story is about the story of an eternal couple who became separated as a result of a curse that made the husband an asur and the wife a destroyer of asuras.

The asur husband was thinking that the reason for his humiliation and the collapse of their family was precisely because of his ex-wife. He was deciding that she should pay for it very dearly by returning the money, nerves, time, resources spent on her... And he was putting her up as an item on their invisible asuric exchange, in order to siphon off her pious merits and throw in someone else's sinful karma.

And of course, there were buyers. Many asuras bought invisible sessions, which, of course, passed completely unnoticed by her, because everything happened at a distance, on the energy connection. My asur husband, being an RA, a big asur, having all possibilities, abilities and powers to conduct such operations, connected through himself to his ex-wife the asuras who bought these sessions. These asuras-buyers either siphoned off pious merits from his ex-wife during these sessions, like from a donor, or threw their sinful reactions, their suddenly surfaced troubles into her, like into a garbage can. And these asura-buyers paid money to my husband-asur for these sessions.

By doing so, my asur husband was getting moral satisfaction and getting back the money spent on his ex-wife. A very good deal. A very good deal for him, but not for her.

Her life was beginning to fall apart because of it. Her health, her beauty, her glamor, her opportunities were beginning to leave her. It was as if her luck was turning away from her. She began to lose people close to her, friends and loved ones and was left all alone. One by one, misfortunes came upon her and she sank to the bottom of her life.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

Before that, she was an aristocratic, respectable, highly educated, wonderful, charming woman of high society, satisfied with life, believing that every woman is born to be happy and she certainly worth it. She had good health, wealth, luck, luxurious living conditions, expensive housing, servants and staff of assistants, she held the reins of the world in her hands. She was a beautiful, feminine, interesting and attractive woman, but suddenly, as if by coincidence, her life began to go downhill, she lost everything she had, and turned into an outcast, cursed by the world and no longer hoping for anything good in life.

From a marvelous woman holding her head proudly, she became a lowly ragamuffin, a homeless, miserable beggar of repulsive appearance, with a multitude of diseases, who had lost all human appearance and as if attracted to herself all the misfortunes of the world.

Her life was completely falling apart. And it was because some asura-buyers were siphoning off her pious merits, her good fortune, like out of a donor. Everything in this life we have due to our stock of piety. But when our stock of piety dries up and we do not have enough to pay for the standard of living we were at, we fall down from it and lose what we had.

And only that was enough for my asur husband to get the satisfaction he wanted. But that was not enough for him. And he was offering asuras on their invisible asuric exchange in addition such service as throwing into his ex-wife someone else's troubles, someone else's sinful reactions. And it was killing his already ex-wife.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

One of the asuras needs to throw off his problems caused by the need to work out his sinful reactions. He has to throw off this burden so that it does not destroy him and his life. Maybe he has been diagnosed with cancer or some other deadly disease. Maybe he has a very unpleasant illness, or is beset by enemies, or is being pursued by a lawsuit, or is facing bankruptcy, or loss of reputation, or the threat of going to prison or war, or fatal bad luck, failure in everything, or the real risk of losing real estate, homes, businesses, and so on. There are various situations through which sinful reactions have to be practiced. And in order not to go through all these troubles, the asuras use the inhabitants of the planets where they are as part of their invisible interstellar landing force. They throw their sinful reactions into them like garbage cans.

This is done so that it is not the asur who goes to prison, but this kind of garbage can. So that it is not the asur who dies of cancer or something else or suffers from some disease, but this kind of garbage can. Especially since this person has set himself up by violating some universal law and thus giving the asuras carte blanche. This is fortunate for the asuras. So that not the asur was taken away from his home, business, his honest name and everything in his life, but from this kind of garbage can. So that it is not the asur who loses his children, his loved ones, but this garbage can.

My asur husband was selling his ex-wife not only to drain her of her good fortune, but also to use her as a kind of trash can. And it was killing her. Someone else's cruel misfortunes were falling on her. The misfortunes poured down on her without stopping, and she could not get up. She was completely crushed, humiliated, exhausted, there was nothing left of her. And my asur husband, who felt himself to have taken a brilliant revenge, going from minus to plus, extremely satisfied with himself and very well enriched (because the asuras paid him for these sessions with money), was closing the page of his life with her, forgot about her and about the fiasco he had experienced with her, and was beginning a new chapter of his life, already with a new wife.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

§19. Sweet revenge. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/ka09aDf8q40>

https://youtu.be/qylCDB9e_L4

But why did he put his ex-wife (a new one each time) in their asuric exchange to accomplish this? He could do it all himself, for he had reached great heights in their asuric interstellar landing on different worlds and had become an RA, a great asur, holding a large organization of asuras under him and having all the capabilities, abilities and powers to carry out such operations.

His duties as an RA in the asuras' troop included such operations of siphoning off from the inhabitants of different worlds their good fortune, the universal currency — pious merits. He regularly carried out such operations, siphoning off pious merits from many women inhabitants of the worlds where he was a part of the asuras' landing party. But in the case of his ex-wives, for some reason he did not do all this himself. For some reason he was connecting through himself onto his already ex-wife the asuras who bought these sessions on their invisible asuric trade exchange, and these asuras-buyers either was siphoning off the pious merits from his ex-wife during these sessions like from a donor, or was throwing their sinful reactions, their suddenly surfaced troubles into her like into a garbage can. Why and for what purpose did he not do it himself, although he could and although he regularly did it to other women? Why did he put his ex-wife (a new one each time) as an item on their asuric invisible trading exchange?

And he did not receive his share of the pious merits siphoned off, but only the ordinary money which was in use there and which was paid to him for these operations by the asuras-buyers. If he himself had done all this, he would have received for it the pious merits siphoned off from his ex-wife, her good fortune, on account of which she had everything in her life and was at the top.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple Pious merits are a more reliable capital than ordinary money, because with the death of the body you lose all this money, but pious merits does not go anywhere and goes with you into your future lives, providing you with a level of life corresponding to its volume. Pious merits do not burn up at death, you do not lose them, they are your gold reserve lying in a fireproof safe, they are the same gold bullion that lies in a safe and secure inviolable deposit. They can be used for something of value to you if needed, or simply exchanged for common coin so that you can have pocket money to live on.

If my asur husband did not put his ex-wife (different each time) as an item on the asuric invisible trading exchange and sell her to asuras, her pious merits would flow from her piety account to his account. This would be more profitable for him than simply selling her to other asuras and getting ordinary currency, ordinary money from them. After all, that money does not go with you into your future lives. They can disappear at any moment. Naked I came from my mother's womb, and naked I shall return there. And it's just about that regular money.

Why did he sell it to other asuras instead of pumping everything from it himself, though he could and had authority from the asuras to do so, and though he knew the value of pious merits and the short-lived and unreliable nature of ordinary money?

The answer is simple: he longed for her humiliation as a woman. Since, on the outside, the cause of the collapse of their marriage was his wife from there, and since he was usually humiliated as a man in one way or another as a result, he craved revenge in the form of her humiliation as a woman. And it was by selling her on their asuric invisible trade exchange that he could achieve this goal of her humiliation as a woman.

For in doing so he was connecting other asuras, asuras-buyers, onto her through him. And he was connecting them onto her not just like that, but as it is customary for asuras — during her intimacy. After all, according to the laws of the Universe, one cannot just take anything without giving anything for it. A quid pro quo. It's the law of the Universe. Nothing is done for nothing. Everything has to be paid for, one way or another. And in the case of asuras there is a common barter, when asuras siphon off a woman's pious merits, giving her in return the pleasure of intimacy with an asur.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

Asuras have some special energy of pleasure. And a woman from intimacy with an asur, receiving this special energy of pleasure, experiences slightly different sensations, somewhat different from her usual experience. These sensations, this sweetness is hotter, sharper, deeper, thicker, for the most part not compared to the sensations of intimacy with ordinary, average men. And asuras pay women in barter with this very energy of pleasure, this sweetness.

In doing so, the laws of the Universe are fulfilled: the asuras have given the woman what she desires — the pleasure she derives from the unusual asuric energy of pleasure, and in doing so, he has taken from her what he desires — her pious merits.

Of course, this is an unequal exchange. It is like the European colonizers robbing the natives, buying their lands, their natural resources, their territories for beads, glitter and trinkets. Is it possible to put on the scales of pious merits, which pays for our desired standard of living, and some enjoyment out of intimacy, the aftertaste of which actually disappears quite quickly?

This is also reminiscent of the reptiloids, who want to take away from the Earthlings their planet with all its subsoil, natural resources and our habitat, giving in return some high, not yet known to humans reptiloid technology. The exchange is clearly unequal, not in our favor. And it's the same in the case of bartering with the asuras. They take pious merits, emptying a woman's deposit, her gold reserve, in order to give her, like a bone to a dog, some transient pleasures, as if to her usual bank account, to a bank card, from which the money somehow quickly disappears.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

But at the same time, a transaction still takes place, although not in favor of the natives, who received some trinkets instead of their lands. And everything is as if according to the law: signatures and seals on the contract of sale are genuine, not forged, and each of the parties to this transaction is satisfied and got what they wanted. Asuras got one more portion of gold bars, and the woman got some slightly hotter and sipping pleasure in her intimacy.

And my asur husband didn't siphon off his ex-wife's (different each time) pious merits himself, but sold her to other asuras in their invisible asuric trading exchange for other men to go through her — those asuras who bought sessions with her from him.

For in doing so, my asur husband was connecting onto her during her intimacy with some man of hers. She had intimacy in real life with her man. And my husband-asur on the energetic plane, at a distance, somehow invisibly was connecting onto them in their intimacy and invisibly was presenting there. He was connecting onto her man and through body of her man was with her as a man, invisibly, through the distance, not being there personally, but feeling everything as it really is, as in real life. And through himself he was connecting asuras onto them, to this couple.

And it turned out that thanks to this energy connection she was not only with her man, but also with some asuras, who were not personally present there, but who at the same time felt everything as it really was and were actually with her through the body of her man.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

She did not guess about it, she did not feel it in any way, did not realize it and could not be traced, but in spite of that, in fact there were some asuras with her at that time, who were male and who lived there, on the same planet where she was, and walked on the earth like everybody else, ate, drank, lived their lives.

And it was because of this that my asur husband was selling her, although he could pump pious merits from her himself, which was more profitable for him, since pious merits are not lost when you leave this life for another incarnation, unlike ordinary money, which you don't take with you after leaving your body at the moment of death.

My asur husband craved her humiliation as a woman. And that's why he was selling her to other asuras. She didn't know that. But he did. And those asuras he was hooking her up with during her intimacy with her man also knew everything and felt everything as it really was. And in essence it was her humiliation as a woman, it was like an abuse of her not realizing what was happening.

My asur husband humiliated many women in this way... He did not humiliate his wives, but just women, to obtain pious merits and pump it into the asuric worlds. He did this to many women while on an asuric landing on different worlds. When his wife was still his wife, she was untouchable, but as soon as she became his ex-wife, he did all this to her as well. It was not enough for him that as a result of siphoning off her pious merits and throwing in other people's sinful reactions she was completely wiped out, crushed, destroyed.

He also wanted to see her humiliation as a woman. And that was why he was putting her up as an item on an asuric invisible trading exchange. He wanted many other men to be with her, even if she herself did not know it, and even if she had not even guessed at the possibility of such a thing. Such was his sweet revenge on her for the wonderful, sweet years he had spent with her. He was selling her, thus giving her the sweetness of the asuric energy of pleasure and reveling in the fact that she, such a wonderful, such a sublime, such an honest, faithful and incorruptible woman, was being taken by many different men for money, like some corrupt person of easy virtue.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

§20. To escape the stroke of the law of karma. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/AYLK63gUNIE>
<https://youtu.be/wpaF8YrUMvk>

My asur husband, having become RA, a great asur in the asuric landing on different worlds, owned a big organization of asuras subordinated to him and had mystical abilities beyond our imagination. He was a kind of tsar with his kingdom allocated to him by the asuras and did what the asuras needed this interstellar landing for. He pumped into the asuric worlds the pious merits he had siphoned from the inhabitants of the worlds he was on.

Pious merits are the currency of the Universe by which we have everything in our lives. We get this currency of the Universe by doing some pious deeds, helping others or doing some asceticism. Nothing in this world is given to us for nothing, for beautiful eyes. Everything has to be paid for. Even though we don't see it. Asuras understand this well and so they pirate the worlds, stealing these universal treasures from other races.

These universal treasures pay for the asuras' high standard of living, good arrangement in life, their pleasant appearance, one might even say beauty. Asuras are usually, on account of this currency of the Universe, very handsome and pleasant to talk to.

And thanks to the fact that my asur husband actually robbed the inhabitants of the worlds where he was a part of the asur troopers, he was very rich, successful, had everything he wished for. In the eyes of women, he was a real man. Any woman would dream of being his wife.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

But all that glitters is not gold. His success in life, good manners, wealth, education, male attractiveness did not do women any good and even, moreover, was extremely dangerous for them, because he, being an RA, a great asur, having abilities, opportunities and authority from the asuras to siphon off their pious merits from others, actually robbed women by siphoning off their pious merits from them. By losing a significant portion of their golden universal reserves, the woman would fall from the standard of living she was at and lose something of value to herself.

She could have lost her health, her family, her husband, her children, her home, her livelihood. She could lose her beauty and become unpleasant in appearance, simply because from her piety account the asuras had taken away a portion of her gold reserves, her pious merits. Her good fortune was sailing away to the asuras. Those goods that were hers by right disappeared from her life and appeared in the lives of the asuras who had stolen her universal money, and she had to face the harsh, cruel, implacable reality.

Of course, my asur husband did not always completely drain the stockpile of piety. Usually, he took so much that the victim could exist more or less normally afterwards. You know, like taking blood from a donor: so that the donor could recover and come back many more times to the blood collection point. But it also completely wiped out many, draining their supply of piety dry. The women who became his wives were especially unlucky.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

He made so many women unhappy. But why didn't retribution catch up with him? Why did he get away with it and why did the boomerang of fate not destroy him as it had destroyed others? Is it possible to escape the influence of the law of karma, according to which you reap what you sow, and at the command of which all our actions we receive corresponding reactions to them: for good actions we receive favorable consequences, and for bad actions we receive negative consequences? How did he avoid paying for what he had done? Did he escape from the influence of the law of karma? And how did he manage it?

He did what all asuras do. He was throwing off his sinful reactions from himself onto others. He, like all asuras, in order not to work out his sinful reactions, found among the inhabitants of those worlds where he was a part of the asuras' landing force, scapegoats, i.e. people, as if they were garbage cans, i.e. those who had somehow made a mistake and grossly violated some laws of the Universe. And my husband-asur, in order not to be punished for his evil deeds, was throwing his sinful reactions into these like garbage cans, into these unfortunate creatures. He not only threw off his sinful reactions, but also sinful reactions of other asuras, who bought from him such a service as throwing off their troubles from themselves on others.

And he was throwing his and others' misfortunes into many inhabitants of other worlds. Fate was punishing not him for his evil deeds, but others, those like garbage cans into who he threw his and other asuras's misfortunes. And thanks to this he happily bypassed the laws of the universe and did not get what he deserved for his evil deeds.

He could do evil indefinitely. As soon as some misfortune came to him, he would immediately find like garbage can and dump that misfortune on it.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

The misfortune went away from him, falling on that poor garbage can, that scapegoat. That scapegoat was losing his house instead of him. That scapegoat lost his health instead of him. That scapegoat lost money instead of him. That scapegoat lost family, loved ones, children, friends instead of him. That scapegoat suffered some horrible disease instead of him. That scapegoat lost his reputation and became an outcast instead of him. That scapegoat died of cancer or some other deadly disease instead of him. That scapegoat went to prison instead of him. Instead of him. He was supposed to go in that hole, but some scapegoat went in.

And in this way he happily avoided any misfortune. As soon as some misfortune appeared on the horizon of his destiny, he immediately found someone to throw it at, and went on with his life as if nothing had happened.

He cleverly was evading the laws of karma, according to which everyone gets what he deserves: you reap what you sow. He did not suffer for the suffering he caused to others. It was others who suffered in his place. Others had to go through the suffering that he had to go through according to the law of karma.

He felt his power over others and total impunity, and this made his hands even looser. He committed his heinous deeds without hesitation and without the slightest doubt, knowing that there would be no retribution, that others would have to pay for it, that the law of karma would not strike him but someone else for his evil deeds, that there would surely be someone on whom the arrows of the law of karma could be shifted to deflect the blow from himself.

He took his winnings time after time, without caring about possible negative consequences, without pitying or sparing anyone and throwing out of the arena of life those who were unlucky enough to be in his way. He got away with it all, and he reveled in his power over others and his independence from the laws of the Universe. He felt like a god, who moved the pieces on the chessboard of life at his will and command, deciding which piece should live and which could be thrown off the chessboard.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

And so, walking on the heads and corpses of others, he went forward countless lives, from one life to another, from one incarnation to another, from one planet to another, from one world to another, in the unquenchable, tenderly cherished by him and carefully guarded from other people's eyes secret hope to find his eternal wife and reunite with her, that is, with me.

§21. Separation through the ages. I'm asura's wife

<https://youtu.be/1RbGsSns-u0>

<https://youtu.be/GRCRHxhPXes>

My eternal husband, being an RA, a great asur in an interstellar landing force of asuras, was searching in different worlds for me, his eternal wife. So that he would not lose sight of his goal, I would periodically visit him in the sleep territory and we would meet there. There he felt our eternal unity and direct current flowing between us as between two halves of one whole. These meetings in the sleep territory, like a beacon in the night, illuminated his dark path and gave him hope. He cherished these fleeting encounters in the depths of his heart and cherished the desire to someday be reunited with this marvelous woman, whose contact with him in his dreams made him feel such incredible, inordinate, sweet feelings that touched every cell of his body and awakened him to life.

He looked for me everywhere, in different worlds, using for this purpose the interstellar landing of asuras, in which asuras, as space pirates, steal from other races universal treasures — pious merits. He was paying many moneys to certain the seekers at the asuras, the kind of trackers who could find a person by using their image in dream territory. Thanks to their services, he was getting information on where to find me.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

He was coming to me, sweeping out of his way anyone and crushing the many wonderful women who had become his wives during his wanderings in search of me. He held them responsible for the collapse of their married life and for the fact that every time they ended their life together he felt humiliated as a man, and he took revenge on them by degrading them as women and wiping them out, siphoning off all their pious merits and throwing in other people's misfortunes, which left no stone unturned, destroyed all their dignity and took away their human way of life.

But in fact, they were only instruments of fate, for he himself humiliated me, his eternal wife, by leaving me for another woman and accusing me of being an inferior woman because I could not bear him a child. In fact, he was the one who could not have a child because he had received a curse that he would not have children of his own. As a result of this curse, he could not have children, but he blamed it on me, making me look like some inferior woman, and fate just returned this humiliation to him, already through other women.

He didn't know that. He didn't know what I had gone through as a result of his decision to leave me, or what I had gone through for many lifetimes after he gave me up and became an asur. He only saw the beautiful image that appeared to him in the sleep territory, and he was unaware of the humiliation that I had suffered on my journey through life after he and I had received our curses: I that I would be alone without my husband, and he that he would have no children of his own and would be all alone at the end of his life.

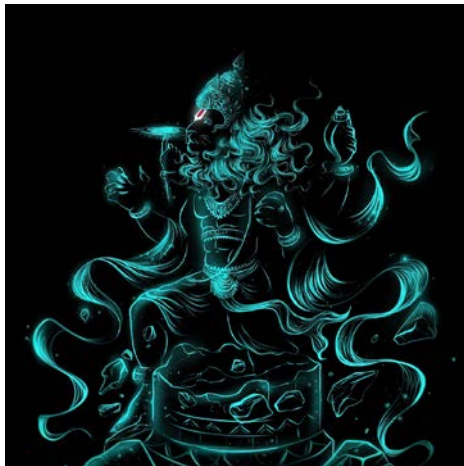

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

When some sage cursed me and my eternal husband because we had ruined his family life and left him alone, without wife and children, in our next life my eternal husband and I could have no children. An asura liked me. He was so attracted to me, that he decided to get me at all costs.

He used the services of an asuri woman who specialized in stealing husbands. At her instigation, my husband accused me of infertility and my failure as a woman and left me. The asur who wanted to get me asked me to marry him, but I refused him. And then he turned the whole neighborhood against me, which began to consider me a witch who casts spoil on me. I was hunted, hunted as a witch, and I had to leave my home and hide in the forests.

Then the asur asked me again to marry him, but I again refused him, and he hired a gang of thugs, telling them that they were free to do anything to me, so long as I crawled to him and begged him to make me his slave. I was raided by these rapists and murderers, but I was saved by a noble powerful nobleman who happened to be passing by. I lived out my life in my ancestral home, hidden from people and living like a recluse.

And after that life, between lives, when I was throwing my call to my eternal husband to come to me in all directions of the Universe and did not receive any answer, some powerful persons came to me and offered to break our eternal bond as an eternal couple. I refused them, due to which I got to the higher heavenly planets, where I started praying to the Deity Nrisimhadev, the Lord in the form of a half-man half-lion, that He would help me to reunite with my eternal husband.

After some time, I developed tender feelings for this Deity and He accepted my call to become my husband. I was dissolved in this Deity Nrisimhadev in the higher heavenly planets for endless time, and afterwards Nrisimhadev told me that it was time for me to start incarnating and wait for the fulfillment of my desire to be reunited with my eternal husband.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

I became a formidable weapon with the nature of Nrisimhadev and some incredible, inordinate powers and abilities. In the beginning of my journey as a weapon, I destroyed forty formidable unattainable asuras, coming to the asuric worlds, taking birth there. I was becoming the wife of such a great asur. He loved me, but every operation I did to destroy such a formidable unattainable asuras, he would at some point give in to temptation and hand me over to his buddies into their orgies with me in the lead, plunging me into some state where I did not realize reality and thought that my husband was with me.

There were many such orgies, I did not know about it. But since the purpose of my mission was to destroy the asuras whose wives I was becoming, at one point the veil was removed from my eyes. And each time it happened during our intim. It was revealed to me what he had done to me, and I burned him with some incredible energy beam, right during that intim. I destroyed forty formidable unattainable asuras in this way. And each time I went through the humiliation as of being a woman.

And as a result, I received a curse from one of the asuras that I would receive the same humiliation from my real husband. In fact, it was because of this curse that he enlisted in the asuras' interstellar landing force and made a dizzying career there. And all the while I continued to destroy all the scum of the Universe as a weapon of the gods.

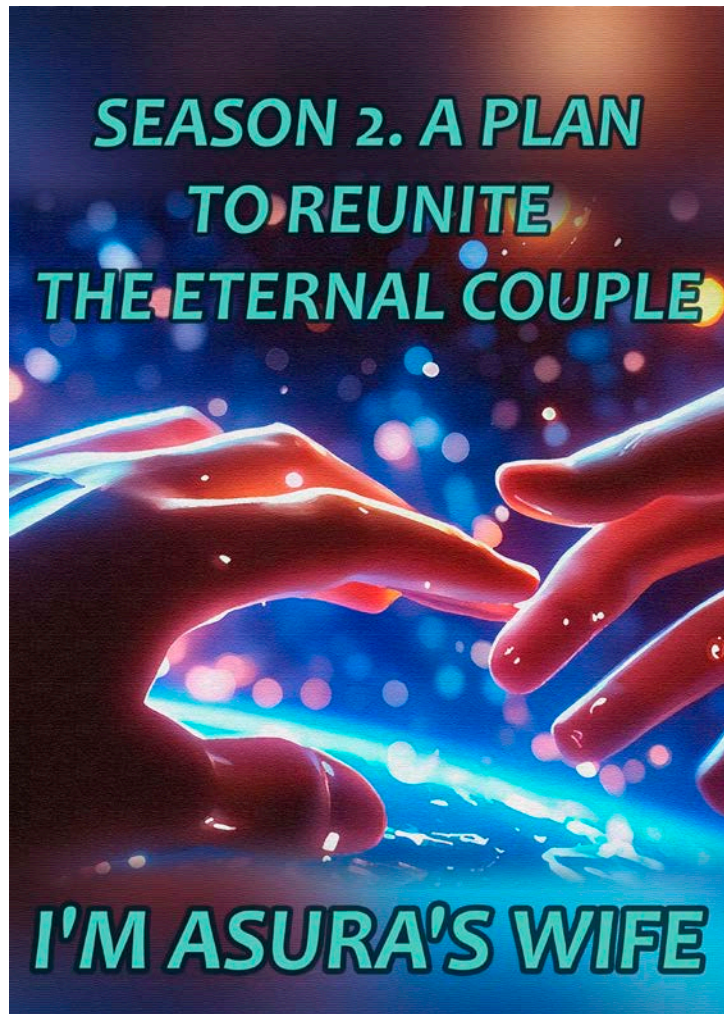

My eternal husband saw a beautiful woman in his dreams and cherished her marvelous image in his heart. Meanwhile, I was destroying asuras like him and many other universal criminals. I risked myself. I did not consider my feelings and desires. I had to go through the humiliation of myself both as a person and as a woman, putting myself in harm's way, only to then hit back and burn the target to the ground.

I'm asura's wife. Season 1. Story of an eternal separated couple

And all the while I was preparing myself to meet my eternal husband, and weaving the threads of fate for the realization of a plan I had conceived, which was waiting for the right, ideal moment for its realization. It was a plan that would close the pages of our curse and separation and make our separation from each other utterly impossible.

This is the end of the first season "Story of an eternal separated couple" of my remake novel "I'm asura's wife" based somewhat on real events and a remake of a story I once told called "My story. I'm asura's wife", formed in the course of my description of some strange invisible hacker connection of some man to me at a distance on some energetic plane of existence. The next, second season, titled "A plan to reunite the eternal couple" of my remake novel "I'm asura's wife", will focus on the details of a plan made by the eternal wife of an eternal couple separated due to a curse to reunite with her eternal husband.